SMITH LOSES STRENGTH IN EMPIRE STATE

Decreased Interest of Off-year Will Cause Smaller Vote for Al
EXPECT MILLS VICTORY
Over-Confidence of Governor's Followers May Defeat Party

Albany, N. Y.—Representative Ogden Mills has a better chance to defeat Gov. Al Smith this year than anybody has had in years. And were it not for the extraordinary past performance of Governor Smith, in fact, if the campaign were to be judged simply on the basis of this year alone, it would not be difficult to predict the election of Mr. Mills.

This summary of the situation is in conflict with the confidence exhibited by the Democratic leaders, including the New York governor. But just as the followers of Jack Dempsey bet their money on what he had done in the past, forgetting that time is a strange transformer of vitality, so also in politics may it be said that Governor Smith is not the same powerful candidate that he was in the past.

OVER CONFIDENCE IN PARTY

Several things have contributed to this state of mind. One is the over-confidence of his own following. The New York City press reflects this difference by the decrease in totals. Also Governor Smith has been in office so long that many voters feel a natural inclination to change. The Klan has taken an aggressive position in certain rural counties.

FIGURES ARE DISCONCERTING

Here are some figures, however, which cannot but be regarded as disconcerting to the Democrats. They were obtained Wednesday at the office of the secretary of state here. They do not include 13 counties on which final figures have not been officially transmitted. Only one of the 13 missing, however, is populous, namely, Monroe. So the ratio will probably remain the same when the figures are all received.

Of the 62 counties in the empire state, 49 this year have a registration of 3,178,738, which compares well, of course, with the 2,845,000 of registration in the identical counties in 1922 but rather unfavorably with the total of 3,411,325 for the same counties in 1924. Registration always falls off in an off-year and goes up in a presidential year like 1924. All the foregoing figures are inclusive of the New York counties. On the face of it, therefore, it would seem that Gov. Smith, who won in 1922 would win again in 1926 because he piled up a 386,000 majority four years ago. The problem goes deeper than mere numbers and is dependent on distribution. The totals for New York City in 1922 were 1,158,512 as compared with 1,499,545 in 1924 and 1,337,161 in 1926. There is a big drop in the New York City registrations from 1924 when Governor Smith's majority was about 708,000.

SMITH LOSES STRENGTH

Governor Smith is not as strong in New York City as he was two years ago. This time Republicans there feel they will be aiding him on his march to the White House if they vote Democratic. Also in 1924 they didn't regard young Theodore Roosevelt as a better man than Smith as they did Governor Smith. They feel that Ogden Mills would make a good governor.

On the whole the election will be decided by about 50,000 voters which is a small total to hold the balance of power in an off-year. If Governor Smith wins it will be by the smallest majority he has yet received but in directions point to the election of Mr. Mills by a close majority.

Realtor Should Be Link Between Government and People, Ludwig Says

RACINE

—(AP)—"The big thing for state associations to follow is taxation," said O. N. Ludwig, president of the Wisconsin Association of Real Estate Brokers at its morning session here Wednesday.

He pointed out that this was true also of the individual realtor, who should form as a class that important link between the government and the people to disseminate the principles underlying taxation and its equitable distribution, so that all classes of property will pay just shares.

NEW BUS COMPANY FORMED TUESDAY

Airplane Passenger Service Included in Plans of New Concern

Chicago.—(AP)—The Motor Transit corporation, capitalized at $10,000,000, and underwritten by northern Minnesota and Michigan capitalists, was formed here Tuesday to operate a bus line service through Minnesota, Michigan, Kentucky, Ohio, Illinois, Wisconsin and Texas. The general offices will be here.

Edwin C. Eckstrom of the Greyhound lines, was named president of the new organization. One of the developments planned include airplane passenger service between Chicago and Benton Harbor, South Haven, Milwaukee and Muskegon.

MICHIGAN OFFICIAL RESIGNS HIS POSITION

Lansing.—(AP)—Andrew B. Dougherty, attorney general of Michigan, resigned Wednesday to engage in other work and Clare Retan, an assistant attorney general, was immediately appointed by Governor Groesbeck to take his place. Dougherty was appointed in 1922 and elected two years later. He failed for re-nomination this fall.

Mars Still Is Mystery To Scientists Of Earth

Must Wait for More Powerful Telescopes, Williams Bay Expert Says

Chicago.—(AP)—Mars, the ruddy world of mystery about which men have speculated for hundreds of years is not likely to yield very much information concerning its physical aspects until larger and more powerful telescopes are made.

This was the opinion of astronomers at Yerkes observatory, Williams Bay, who have been training their lenses on the enigma of the skies now a scant 42,600,000 miles from a questioning earth.

Weather was ideal at Williams Bay Tuesday night but currents interfered with observation, creating a haze about the planet and causing its telescopic image to waver before eager eyes. Several sketches were made, however, and observations will be continued for the next two weeks.

Current scrutiny of the planet, which has two moons to the earth's one, has revealed that the summer season is well advanced. The white spot at the north polar region taken to be ice or snow, was considerably smaller than during the observation of August, 1924, the last time Mars was in a favorable position for investigation.

OPEN TRIAL OF TENT BURNING AT MARINETTE

Badger Officials Begin Hearing Testimony on Klan Riot Case

Marinette.—(AP)—The state called more witnesses to the stand Wednesday morning to testify in regard to a riot here June 25, when the tent of local chapter of the Ku Klux Klan was burned, and which resulted in the arrest of nine Marinette men who are charged with rioting and destruction of property.

Testimony departed somewhat from its untruffled continuity Tuesday afternoon when two of the state witnesses took the stand. Homer Hamblin admitted that in previous testimony in the John Doe hearing here several weeks ago he had taken advantage of a technicality to hide his membership in the Klan organization.

AVOIDED DIRECT ANSWER

Hamblin testified that in the John Doe hearing here when the attorney asked him if he was a member of the Klan, he considered himself not a Klansman, a general proceeding, it is understood, in the civil war organization of the Klan. He admitted that he knew at the time what the attorney intimated but nevertheless denied being a Klansman.

Arthur Rettke, another state witness, testified he had heard some Menominee, Mich., men talk about wrecking the tent and hanging Tupac, a local Klan member. He also testified that he had heard Mike Sherry, one of the defendants, say the next day that he "had a good time" the night before and "helped to burn the Klan tent."

TWELVE MOROS KILLED IN PHILIPPINE FIGHT

Manila.—(AP)—Twelve Moros were killed in a fight Wednesday between Philippine constabulary troops and a band of Moro outlaws in Lanao province. There were no casualties among the constabulary. The constabulary was attempting to arrest three Moros who recently murdered Otto R. Seltzer, an American citizen. The outlaws took refuge in a cave or fort which the constabulary stormed.

HONOR GREAT LEADER ON BIRTHDAY TODAY

New York.—(AP)—Wednesday the sixty-fifth anniversary of Theodore Roosevelt's birthday was observed throughout the country as Navy day. Ships in port were thrown open to the public. ceremonies and radio programs were arranged to call attention to the country's first line of defense and to the career of the man who as assistant secretary of the navy and commander-in-chief, as well as in private life, promoted the navy's interest with all his energy.

BAR ASSOCIATION ACTS AGAINST REFERENDUM

Superior.—(AP)—Unanimous opposition to the Douglas-Bar association to the referendum amendment to be voted on Nov. 2 was voted Tuesday. Judge William Steele, member of the state law examining board is leader in a fight to defeat the amendment, maintaining it will be passed, do away with the independence of Wisconsin judges.

ANOTHER MAN KILLED AT KENOSHA CROSSING

Kenosha.—(AP)—William Paluski, 41, was instantly killed when he crawled under the gates of the Northwestern railroad at the Middle-st crossing Wednesday morning directly in the path of a northbound passenger train. The accident occurred four blocks from the Lemon-st crossing where five persons were killed last Saturday.

ASK VOTERS TO FIGHT AGAINST SLUSH FUNDS

Comstock, Democrat, Makes Strong Campaign Against G. O. P. Choice

Detroit.—(AP)—Spiced with allusions to large primary campaign expenditures and garnished with warnings by the Democrats that the election of the Republican candidate would mean the return to power of the "Newberry wing" of the party, the Michigan governorship cake awaits the voters knife next Tuesday. The Republican candidate is Colonel Fred W. Green, formerly of Iowa for 13 years, formerly treasurer of the Republican state central committee, and manufacturer of road furniture. — The Democratic candidate is William A. Comstock, drafted by his party, while he lay on a hospital bed, and, as he said, "unable to escape the nomination." For five years he was chairman of the Democratic state central committee. Like Green he is a small town man, having been reared in Alpena, where he made money in lumber. He now resides in Detroit.

LONG CAMPAIGN

Comstock has campaigned since early summer with a vigor unheard of in Democratic party annals of Michigan. He has stumped the state in pre-primary and pre-election drives for votes. He has hammered on the need of a "house cleaning" at Lansing. He has assailed the "one man rule" of Governor Alex. Groesbeck. He has charged Green with membership in the Newberry wing of the Republican party. He has warned voters that if Green is elected, patronage will be passed out the pleasure of Mayor John W. Smith of Detroit, active and enthusiastic Green supporter.

ASKS INVESTIGATION

Comstock asked the attorney general of Michigan to investigate Colonel Green's primary campaign expenditures. He has already steadily beaten for re-nomination by a candidate who had the Green endorsement, refused the Comstock request on the ground that the charges were not supported by evidence. — The Democratic attachment, which can state away steadily, has since Comstock was chosen by his party at a pre-primary convention, Colonel Green has made categorical denial. The charges, Green has reiterated, are phantom issues projected by a party which can state away steadily with the Republican administration. The only complaint the Democrats have according to Green, is the "dictatorship" of Governor Groesbeck and, Green points out, the remedy forthwith was provided when the Republican primary gave Green a 150,000 majority over Groesbeck.

UNCOVER CLEW IN DEATH OF TEACHER

Toledo Police Find Bar After Murder of 26-year-old Woman

Toledo, O.—(AP)—Police Wednesday uncovered two clews in connection with the clubbing to death of Miss Lily Dale Croy, 26, school teacher, whose body was found early Tuesday. James A. Harrison, Negro, turned over to police an iron bar, which he found on a refuse pile near the scene of the Croy slaying. It was covered with blood and matted hair. The bar was taken to police headquarters for examination to ascertain if hair on it was the same as that of Miss Croy. Officers also are searching for the driver of a taxicab who was reported to have picked up a fare near the scene of the clubbing and taken the man to a downtown hotel. The man, according to the report to police appeared to have blood on his coat.

No definite clews have been developed early Wednesday in the murder of the second woman, Mrs. Mary Alden, found shot to death in her home Tuesday night. Police so far have been unable to connect the slaying of Mrs. Alden with the Croy murder.

COUNSEL FOR ENGLISH RESIGNS BEFORE TRIAL

St. Louis.—(AP)—The St. Louis Post Dispatch Wednesday says William F. Zumburn of Washington, general counsel for the Ku Klux Klan, has resigned as chief counsel for federal Judge George W. English, of the Eastern Illinois district in his impeachment trial before the senate opening Nov. 10. E. C. Kramer of East St. Louis, member of counsel for Judge English, said the withdrawal of Zumburn would "not affect the case one way or another," and so far as he knew the jurist would be ready to go to trial on the date set.

HERRIN BOOZE RING BEGINS NEW WARFARE

Armored Truck and Machine Guns Figure in Clashes Between Parties

Herrin, Ill.—(AP)—Two warring factions in "bloody Williamson-co." rested on their arms Wednesday in a tense atmosphere created by the slaying of two men in the latest renewal of hostilities in the county. — After the bodies of William McQuay and Ward Jones were found early Tuesday, gangs headed by Charles Birger and the Shelton brothers were reported heavily armed and ready to fight to settle bootleg business quarrels. McQuay and Jones were members of the Birger faction. McQuay's body was found on a lonely road riddled with machine gun bullets, while that of Jones was discovered in a creek. The latter had been shot four times.

"GOING TO GET EVEN"

Birger was reported Tuesday night moving with his wife and women relatives from his home in Harrisburg. "We are going to get even and we are going to work fast," he told newspapermen. The Birger gang is reported to have an armored truck and a number of machine guns. Little is known of the strength of the Shelton group. The two factions formerly were united in opposition to the Ku Klux Klan but are said to have split over liquor operations.

Sheriff George Galligan said he had not heard of possession of machine guns by Birger but knew of the armored car. He said he heard the car was kept "for protection."

WILL ORDER MRS. MILLS' BODY EXHUMED IN TRIAL

Jersey City, N. J.—(AP)—Special prosecutor Simpson of the Hall-Mills murder case Wednesday decided to exhumate the body of Mrs. Eleanor Mills from Van Liew cemetery, New Brunswick.

The body of Rev. Edward W. Hall, slain with Mrs. Mills four years ago, will be exhumed from a Brooklyn, N. Y., cemetery if court process now pending in New York Supreme court are successful, Simpson announced.

Chicago.—(AP)—China lacks any government except that of warlords, prompted by greed and agrarianism and this fact is rapidly reducing a nation of great potentialities to impotence and misery, Silas H. Strawn, American delegate to the empire, told the association of commerce Wednesday.

Strawn's address was his first since his return from China after representing the United States at a conference on the Chinese customs tariff and on an international commission of extraterritorial jurisdiction in that country.

He painted a picture of a country overrun with soldiers and bandits, ridden by ill-considered and ill-considered, unequal treaties, extra-territoriality or lack of tariff autonomy, but to her own inability to form a government with any semblance of stability or authority.

STEEL, MOTOR EARNINGS IN GREAT JUMP

New York Financial Commentators Vary in Interpretations of Rise

New York.—(AP)—The significance of exceptional earnings by U. S. Steel and General Motors was variously interpreted by financial commentators Wednesday.

The Steel corporation reported earnings of $52,026,826 for the third quarter of 1926, and General Motors reported $149,317,553 for the first nine months of this year.

The Steel corporations earnings are its highest since the final three months of 1918, at the close of the war and the nine months report for General Motors is larger than for any previous complete year in its history. The steel earnings represent a net share of $13.07 as compared with $9.43 for the same period last year and the General Motors earnings $17.77 per share, as compared with $9.71 for the first nine months of 1925. The Republic, New York Herald-Tribune says Wednesday:

PREDICTS PROSPERITY

"Facts and figures bearing out the predictions of prosperity voiced on numerous occasions by Elbert H. Gary, and other industrial and financial leaders of the country were supplied by two of the nation's billion dollar organizations each the largest of its class."

The Independent New York Times says: "That the securities market is rather idle and listless at the moment is accounted for by the fact that these figures as well as the figures of many other corporations now being currently published reflect past business and are 'water over the wheel.' Nevertheless they are a good indication of the likelihood of corporate earnings as a whole in 1926 establishing records measurably above those of 1925."

"SERIES OF CONTRASTS"

The Democratic New York World regards the earnings statements as "another in a series of contrasts between what big and small enterprises can accomplish."

"Manufacturing and management efficiency," the World continues, "have made tremendous strides but the great bulk of business has not been able to keep pace. The leaders are undoubtedly enjoying great prosperity but many small organizations have a different story to tell."

EX-CONVICT HELD IN DOUBLE MURDER

Seek Warrant for Roy Nunn in Slaying of Michigan Game Wardens

Marquette, Mich.—(AP)—A warrant charging Roy Nunn, ex-convict, with the murder of Emil Skoglund, and Arvid Erickson, state and county game wardens will be sought Wednesday by Prosecuting Attorney Thomas Clancy.

A coroner's jury late Tuesday held that the two officers had been slain and expressed belief that they had been killed by Nunn, who is said by Captain A. A. Downing of the Michigan state police, to have confessed.

The two game wardens were shot to death Sept. 29, and their bodies tossed into Lake Superior at the Marquette docks. Their bodies were not recovered for several days after Nunn's arrest when he led them to the place.

Denying any connection with disposition of the bodies Joseph O. Gendron, arrested in Detroit Friday, is held as an accessory after the fact. Gendron was brought here Tuesday, being sought following Nunn's alleged confession which according to Captain Downing implicated Gendron as assisting in disposing of the bodies.

Pittsburg, Pa.—(AP)—The body of Harry Greb, former middleweight boxing champion of the world who died suddenly in Atlantic City late last week, found a last resting place in Calvary cemetery.

Thousands paid a final tribute to the memory of the "Pittsburg windmill" including Gene Tunney, heavyweight champion, who was among the pall bearers.

After solemn high mass in St. Philomena's Catholic church, the body was taken to Calvary and lowered into a grave adjoining the one in which rests the body of Greb's wife.

Drop Washington Case

Indiana Hearing Are Adjourned Until Thursday; Call More Witnesses

Kansas City, Mo.—(AP)—Investigation of senatorial elections in three states centered at Portland, Ore. Wednesday, where Senator Charles L. McNary of Oregon, was to inquire into charges of excessive expenditures, while the inquiry at St. Louis into the Ku Klux Klan phase of the Indiana situation stood adjourned until Thursday when additional witnesses were to testify before Senator James A. Reed, Democrat, Missouri, chairman of the senate campaign funds committee.

Senator McNary, a member of the committee, concluded the Washington state investigation at Seattle Tuesday when neither Democratic nor Republican representatives were able to produce evidence showing large expenditures by senatorial candidates.

WITNESSES SUMMONED

Witnesses were summoned to testify before Senator McNary Wednesday on charges of excessive contributions to opponents of Senator Robert N. Stanford, Republican, who is seeking election as an independent candidate following his defeat in the primary by Frederick Steiner attorney and wheat grower. As witnesses assembled for the Oregon and Indiana hearings, Senator Ralph H. Cameron, Republican, Arizona, demanded Senator Reed designate Senator McNary to investigate reports that a $100,000 "slush fund" by a New Mexico bank and eastern copper interests in an effort to control the state. Senator Reed was expected to reply to this request Wednesday.

TAGGART BEFORE JURY

Indianapolis.—(AP)—The Taggart case for years a power in Democratic circles, and Charles A. Greathouse, Democratic national committeeman for Indiana, appeared Wednesday before the Marion county grand jury investigating charges of political corruption in the state.

They were in the jury room for about fifteen minutes. They were followed by William H. Armistage, local Republican politician and Boyd Curley, managing editor of the Indianapolis Times.

It was believed Taggart and Greathouse were asked if they knew of any effort by the Ku Klux Klan to obtain power within the Democratic ranks. The grand jury investigation hinges round statements alleged to have been made by D. C. Stephenson, in which he asserted the Klan controlled some Democratic and Republican politicians while he was grand dragon of the hooded order a few years ago.

PAY FINAL TRIBUTE AT BIER OF HARRY GREB

Pittsburg, Pa.—(AP)—The body of Harry Greb, former middleweight boxing champion of the world who died suddenly in Atlantic City late last week, found a last resting place in Calvary cemetery.

Thousands paid a final tribute to the memory of the "Pittsburg windmill" including Gene Tunney, heavyweight champion, who was among the pall bearers.

WARREN IS WHITE HOUSE GUEST OF PRESIDENT

Washington.—(AP)—Charles Beecher Warren of Detroit, whose nomination to be attorney general was twice rejected by the senate last year, arrived in Washington Wednesday to be the guest of President and Mrs. Coolidge at the White House. Mr. Warren is a Republican leader in his state and former ambassador to Japan and Mexico. White House officials did not disclose whether the visit had a bearing on the present Mexican situation.

SEVERE EARTH SHOCKS ARE FELT IN MISSOURI

Popular Bluffs, Mo.—(AP)—Fifteen severe earth tremors were felt here from 10:22 to 10:25 Wednesday. Windows were shaken but no damage was done. A second tremor was felt at 10:25 and continued until 10:32. It was more severe than the first. Buildings in the downtown section of the city were shaken severely but no damage was reported.

URGES PHYSICIANS TO HALT SELLING OF PRESCRIPTIONS

Clergyman Declares Prohibition Is Not a Failure, and Will Not Be

Washington—(AP)—National prohibition "is not a failure, nor is it going to be," says Dr. Nolan R. Best, secretary of the Baltimore Federation of Churches in a review of the situation prepared for the Administrative Committee of the Federal Council of Churches, and to be published by Doran and Company.

A foreword, signed by Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, president, and other officials of the Federal council, describes Dr. Best's conclusions as setting forth "deep convictions held by the Administrative Committee."

Dr. Best declares it is not enough for prohibitionists to say "Prohibition is the law." He urges instead that the "let not stich -ady is -tob-f-d(ETAO) friends of the day law should say "Prohibition is a good law." Too many Americans, he observes, have reverted to the "cockle stage," pining for liquor as children used to pine for the cookies mother had hidden up in the cupboard.

"SHAMEFUL VIOLATION"

"Prohibition laws have been shamefully violated since the liquor business was outlawed in the United States, but all that violation is a bagatelle compared with the defiance throughout the country of every form of law designed to regulate the sale of drink while the saloons were still licensed," the church leader declares.

Expressing regret for the need for laws governing the prescriptions of alcohol by the medical profession, Dr. Best states that the strict limit put on physicians is caused by "men who debase their profession by selling prescriptions without any color of medical reason." He calls upon the medical fraternity to clear its ranks, saying:

"As soon as responsible medical organizations declare themselves ready thus to purge their profession and keep it pure by their own indictment of unworthy individuals, every restriction of law on a physician's employment of liquors for remedial purposes should be abolished."

Dealing with personal liberty, he says:

"Nobody, so far as known, seriously insists that in order to be a free American a citizen needs either to possess or exercise a liberty to get drunk. It is to be supposed that the Declaration of Independence guarantees a man the freedom to get half-drunk or even a third-drunk or a quarter-drunk and yet denies him the right of being completely drunk?"

UNUSUAL NUMBER WILL VOTE BY MAIL, PREDICT

More than 75 applications have been received by mail and ballots returned to the applicants, it was reported Tuesday at the office of County Clerk John E. Hantschel. This is an unusual number, even if others do not come in, it was stated.

OLDSMOBILE CAR IS ABANDONED AT FARM

An Oldsmobile touring car, bearing license number D 95-467, was abandoned in the driveway of the Louis Schulz farm, route 2, Appleton, Saturday afternoon, Sept. 16, and the driver has not been heard of since. The license number was issued to Wilmer Kent-merchok, 1217 Twelfth-st., Oshkosh.

Efforts of local police to locate the young man at that address have failed. The young man was traced to New London where he was lost.

No one at the Schulz home noticed the car when it was abandoned in the driveway, but later a neighbor told of having seen a young man between 18 and 20 years old alight and walk toward Appleton. Mr. Schulz is holding the car for storage.

UNASSESSED INCOME FOR 1920 ASSESSABLE

Madison—(AP)—Unassessed income for the year 1920 may be assessed in 1927, Attorney General Herman L. Ekern held in an opinion given to the Wisconsin Tax commission Thursday.

The commission in its query asked "the attorney general whether statutory provisions that "after Jan. 1, 1927, assessment and correction in assessment may be made only for the six years immediately preceding the current assessment" applied to unassessed income of 1920.

DELEGATES RETURN FROM "Y" MEETING

R. M. Eickmeyer, activities secretary of the Y. M. C. A., and John Trautman, chairman of the religious work committee, returned Monday from Chicago, where they attended the national religious work conference of the association. Mr. Eickmeyer represented the employed officers and Mr. Trautman the laymen. The discussions, led by well-known association and religious authorities, were on The Religious Emphasis of the Y. M. C. A. and Quickening of the Evangelistic Spirit of the Y. M. C. A. Practically every association in the country was represented by a secretary and layman at the sessions.

COLLEGE WILL ISSUE ITS OWN DIRECTORY

A Lawrence college student directory will be published for the first time this year by the college administration. Heretofore, individuals have undertaken the work for private profit and advertising space has been sold in the publication.

The college directory will have no advertising, it was said, and an endeavor has been made to have the information entirely accurate. This was not possible when the project was privately managed, as the facilities for securing data were more limited.

Now— Another Exclusive "1900" WHIRLPOOL Washer Feature

$5 DOWN AND 20 MONTHS TO PAY

An 18 Ounce Tempered Copper TUB

Will Last A Lifetime

Not Only the Fastest
Washer But the Most Perfect Mechanically

Tempered copper, the secret of the ancients, and a mystery that baffled metallurgists for centuries—is now used by the "1900" WHIRLPOOL WASHER in the manufacture of its tubs, adding more years of life to the machine's usefulness and insuring it against buckling, bending or leaking. So hard that tools can be made of it, tempered copper was only recently rediscovered and despite its costliness, was adopted by the "1900" Washer Company to make the "1900" Whirlpool a still more perfect machine for the modern housewife.

No other washer employs this wonderful metal, nor do any other washers have the mechanical perfection attained by the "1900" Whirlpool with its Timken and babbitt bearings, case hardened gears, circulator action, single switch control, leakproof stuffing box and duco outer finish. Like a fine automobile the "1900" Whirlpool Washer not only has unequalled speed but also endurance, convenience and simplicity.

Washes Eight Pounds of Clothes in 5 Minutes

If you can not do the washing for an average family of four in an hour you haven't a modern washer. The "1900" Whirlpool washer will solve your laundry problem in an hour a week. Collar bands, cuffs, overalls—they're all equal in the "1900" Whirlpool tub. Just put them in the water and watch them wash. No adjustments regardless of the load and only one control for everything. Nothing to care for and nothing to learn about operating it. Come in and see the "1900" Whirlpool in action. See how it washes eight pounds of clothes in five minutes.

LEGIBILITY, NOT BEAUTY, IS NEW WRITING STANDARD

Teachers Seek for Freedom of Movement in Penmanship

Freedom of movement and legibility rather than beauty will be the aim of Appleton public schools in writing instruction in the future under the economy method, it was decided at the meeting of the writing committee with the superintendent of schools Tuesday afternoon. The committee will try to find the difficulties liable to be present in the teaching of this method and will study the best methods of combating these problems in order to save useless experimentation.

A scale of writing specimens has been arranged and will be placed in each school room. When the pupil has completed his lesson, he may compare the work with the examples on the chart, and thus see whether his work is a passing grade. Under the old Palmer system used for many years, uniformity and beauty of form was considered in judging the value of writing. With the economy method, this is believed unnecessary, but legibility and freedom of the muscles is important, it was said. The teachers will try to prevent writer's cramp, by teaching the children to write with the muscles flexible.

Tools such as pens and pencils will be adapted to the muscular and nervous coordination of the children. If the best work can be done with a fine point pen it will be used, but if a coarser point is more efficient he will use that type. Six types of points have been selected by the teachers.

These are closely similar to those used by the fountain pen manufacturers who have studied carefully the types of points best adapted to the easiest writing, it was believed.

Miss Margaret Comerford is chairman of the committee, and others working with her are Miss Frances Lindow, Miss Venice Fellows, Miss Gladys Burns, Miss Emma Schwandt and Mrs. Ewald Elias.

BRITISH AUTORS ALSO KICK AT FILM VERSIONS

London, (AP)—British writers do not like the film versions of their stories any better than many Americans do.

Thomas Burke, the accredited author of "London," which the British National Film Company is now showing, is chafing under liberties taken with his original scenario.

"My scenario was called 'The Pilgrim's March' and had no resemblance to what is being offered," he declared. "This film is called a romance of Mayfair and Limehouse. I never called the scenario that, because it wasn't any romance at all. I never saw a foot of this film when it was being made and was amazed when I read there was a 'Limehouse death' in it. I never heard of such a thing. There is no literary version of the story, so I suppose the public will always think I am responsible for the filmed version."

Dorothy Gish is the featured player, which the London press has received unfavorably.

100 APPLICATIONS FOR TRAPPERS' LICENSES

Applications for trapping licenses passed the 100 mark Tuesday, it was reported at the office of County Clerk John E. Hantschek. The season on mink and muskrat opened Monday. Most trappers are planning to lay lines of up to 100 traps, it is indicated by number of trap tags purchased with each license.

BUICK MECHANICS OF 11 CITIES AT SCHOOL

Buick dealers and mechanics from 11 cities in the Appleton district attended a one day improvement school conducted at the Central Motor Car company, 127 E. Washington-st. Tuesday. The school was conducted by E. P. Putrow, of the Buick Motor Car company branch at Milwaukee. A large trailer, 45 feet long and weighing approximately three tons, carries the new equipment and newest Buick improvement.

The trailer is opened and forms a small platform from which Mr. Putrow demonstrates Buick improvements and the newest tools for servicing Buick automobiles. A noon forum was held during which the mechanics asked questions.

DANISH KING HAD BEST MEAL WITH POOR FAMILY

Copenhagen, (AP)—King Christian is very fond of boiled potatoes, but he can't get them at the palace as he likes them because the chef insists upon too many trimmings.

But at the dwelling of a country vicar the king, when his automobile broke down, enjoyed what he termed "the most delicious potatoes I have ever tasted."

Leaving the car near Ribe, the king with his principal chamberlain, set out on foot to reach the nearest village. Arriving at the local manse the king told the vicar of his mishap and explained that he was exceedingly hungry.

The vicar and his family were just ready to start their evening meal, consisting of potatoes and onion sauce. The king insisted upon joining them. The vicar was apologetic about the Spartan food, but the king declared it to be better than many of the royal dinners.

Elect Directors

Directors to all the positions of those whose terms expire will be elected at the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Catholic home association at the home at 7:30 Thursday evening. Plans for the immediate future of the association will be made.

MAY CALL MEETING OF EQUALIZATION BOARD

Mike Mack, chairman of the county board of supervisors, will be in Appleton on Thursday to determine whether a meeting of the county committee on equalization will be called before the regular November sessions of the county board. Present indications are that such a meeting will be unnecessary although the statutes stipulate that where there is any business for the committee to transact or review it should convene two weeks before the date set for the annual fall board meeting.

LEGION SIGNS UP 211 VETERANS IN 1ST WEEK OF DRIVE

Only Half of Captains Report at First Get-together Meeting

Reports of "campaigners" of Oney Johnston post of the American Legion at the first meeting in the drive for 400 members, showed that 211 Veterans had been secured in less than a week. The drive started last Thursday and the first reports were made at a meeting at Elk hall Tuesday evening. The campaign lasts until Armistice day, Nov. 11, when it will close with a joint membership drive and "Armistice day banquet. More than 35 Legionnaires are taking part in the drive.

While the reports showed that 211 members had been gained, post officers were optimistic because only 50 per cent of the captains reported, the remainder being out working on the drive according to their division mates. The first complete checkup will be made at 6 o'clock Friday evening at the Conway hotel at a dinner to which all team captains and members have been invited.

Les Smith's team secured the most members up to Tuesday evening, though the reports were incomplete. Fred Heinrich's men were next with Charles Sparling's team third. Talks were given by Fred Morris, H. L. Plummer, national executive committee member of the Legion for Wisconsin, George Dine, past commander of the post, and Arthur Holmes of the executive committee.

Mr. Morris, chairman of the Charles O. Baer camp of Spanish-American war veterans, told of membership campaigns of that organization and described the problems encountered by the organization in its drive.

SCIENTISTS GO TO TOKIO FOR IMPORTANT MEETING

Tokio, (AP)—Probably the most important meeting of scientists ever held in the Orient will open in Tokyo Oct. 30, for a twelve-day session. The conference is that of the Third Pan-Pacific Science congress, and prominent scientists from almost every country in the world are expected to be in attendance. Among the important topics to be discussed are:

Review of the present state of knowledge of the physical and biological oceanography of the Pacific, and currents, temperatures, salinity, hydrogen, concentration, abundance of plankton, duration of the swimming larval stage of organisms that are sedentary in the adult stage, etc.

Report on the network of earthquake observations in the countries of the Pacific.

Transmission of earthquake waves across the Pacific.

Study of volcanoes in the Pacific region in their geological aspects.

Stratigraphy of the coal-bearing formations in the Pacific region; stratigraphy of the oil bearing formations.

Antiquity of man in the Pacific region; anthropometry of the races of the Pacific.

VOCATIONAL Y CLUB HAS FIRST TEST GAME

The first of a series of test games which will bring to the program of the Vocational Y club for the year was the feature of the regular meeting of the club Tuesday evening at the Y. M. C. A. Plans for a party were discussed and it was decided not to have a Halloween party, but to wait until some other holiday. The party will be held at the school and carries the 1927 graduating class probably will be guests.

It was decided to retain last year's officers for a time before electing a new slate. Officers are Richard Venzlaff, president; Alvin Rehnke, vice president; William Schmidt, secretary; William Schmidt, treasurer.

Howard Menzies of Lawrence college is club leader and Selmer Sater of the vocational school faculty is faculty advisor.

NOTED ROYAL THEATRE GOES INTO REPERTORY

Cambridge, England (AP)—The Old Royal Theatre Barnwell is only regency theatre still intact in which Macready, Kemble, Charles Kean, Miss Foote and Sheridan Knowles played, is under reconstruction and will be converted into a repertory theatre for Cambridge.

Dickens gave readings in this old theatre, but for the last forty years it has been used as a mission hall.

A professional company of fifteen has been engaged and will be supplemented by amateurs.

SCORE ANOTHER FOR HAWKSHAW

"Shake" said Prosecutor C. B. McClintock (left) of Canton, Ohio, to Detective Ora Slater after the capture of Pat McDermott, Mellett murder case suspect. Inset above is a sketch of McDermott inset below, Jacob Nesbitt, noted wife-slayer whom Slater induced to confess.

"Sugar" Detective Lands Mellett Slayer In Jail

BY W. M. BRAUCHER

Canton, Ohio.—They said the Canton underworld was too tough for Detective Ora Slater, the "private Hawkshaw."

His critics couldn't see how a country boy could do what seemed to have nothing more than a fund of funny stories could capture the slayers of Don Mellett, the crusading Canton editor.

Slater's "sugar catches more crooks than vinegar" gave the hard-boiled police departments of the big cities a hearty laugh—even a guttural.

AS FICTION WOULD HAVE IT

But, working on a cold trail, Detective Ora Slater captured the "key man" in the murder, Pat McDermott, the former convict who had been hunted over the nation for three months after Mellett was shot down at his garage door one July night.

It was a bloodless capture. Slater hadn't even a gun when he went to bring McDermott back to the scene of the crime. He simply walked up to McDermott and said:

"Pat, I'm very glad to meet you." "Pat, without a word, went right along. From Twin Rocks, Pa., to Canton the unarmed Slater and McDermott rode quietly back to Canton. It was like leading McDermott back by the hand.

WAGGING TONGUE IS A WINNER

On the way back Slater entertained. His humorous stories, his quiet way, his "sugar"—these made an immediate friend of the man police of the nation had hunted as a desperate criminal.

It was not the first big murder case into which the stocky little Hawkshaw from Cincinnati had stepped—nor the first that Slater's quiet way had worked out.

A few months before, at Troy, Ohio, he won a confession from Jack Nesbitt, noted wife murderer. Here, too, "sugar" did the work. He won Nesbitt by talking of the weather and the crops.

Slater's methods have worked out many other crimes, but his quiet, eccentric ways were too much for the newspaper men covering the Canton murder.

They had been on the job hardly 24 hours when funny stories about

GEOLOGISTS VISIT CAVE OF BANDITS

Former Hiding Place of River Pirates Studied at Missouri University

Rocheport, Mo., (AP)—Rendezvous for student outings, and a subject of study for geological field trips from the University of Missouri, the Rocheport cave, near here, once was the den of river bandits and the haven for escaping horse thieves.

The cavern, a deep recess in the rolling hills of central Missouri, is not far from the Missouri river which skirts Rocheport. The entrance about 50 feet high, and half that wide is screened by heavy underbrush, that in summer almost completely conceals the opening.

In the crinoline days when Rocheport was one of the most important river points between St. Louis and Kansas City, folk lore records the operations of a band of river pirates who regularly stripped the wharves of barrels of sorghum, boxes of provisions and other commodities. The loot was stored in the cave. A fight between the river robbers and a posse of enraged boatmen at the mouth of the cave is said to have ended the career of that band, and the lives of several of its members.

Horse thieves in later years would hide in the cave when the vigilantes pressed them too closely. It has many chambers and winding tunnels.

SEEK TO INCREASE LEGION MEMBERSHIP

Plans for increasing the membership of the Outagamie-co council of the American Legion and for conducting membership drives in the various posts will be taken up at the October meeting of the council Thursday evening at Kimberly clubhouse. Delegates from every post in the county are expected to attend.

Harvey Friebe, commander of Oney Johnston post and a delegate to the national convention at Philadelphia, will report on the convention. Mr. Friebe represented the Ninth district. Marshall Grant, executive of the Eighth district, who now resides in Appleton, will speak at the meeting.

NEW TRIANGLE CLUB ELECTS ITS OFFICERS

John Reeve was elected president of Roosevelt high school Triangle club at the final organization meeting of the club Tuesday evening at the Y. M. C. A. Other officers are Lawrence Osterhaus, vice president; William Foote, secretary; R. Russell, treasurer; Harold Zimdars, sergeant-at-arms. The officers are only temporary as the club still has no constitution. When the constitution is completed permanent officers will be elected.

The meeting opened with a supper. It was decided to hold the regular meetings of the club at 7 o'clock every Tuesday evening at the association building. Eight boys are charter members of the club but more will be added after the constitution is completed. Besides the officers other members are Karl Ek, William Scott and J. Watts.

PLUMMER WILL TALK TO H. S. PUPILS ON BALLOT

H. L. Plummer, formerly state commander of the American Legion and now a member of the Oney Johnston post, will speak to the students of Appleton high school at a general assembly Tuesday afternoon on the Significance of the Ballot. This is a part of the nation wide drive of the legion to get out the vote for the congressional and state elections on Nov. 2.

One thousand cards have been printed by the organization on the ballot and will be distributed to the students. They will be asked to take them to their parents in order that they will realize the importance of using the opportunity presented.

"Pat, I'm very glad to meet you," Slater said.

DON'T DISCRIMINATE AGAINST CATHOLIC, METHODIST PLEADS

Religious Faith Not a Consideration for Office Fitness, Preacher Says

Detroit—(AP)—No man must be refused public office, however high or however low, because of the religious group to which he belongs, says the Rev. Lynn Harold Hough, of the Central Methodist Episcopal church, in an article written for the November issue of the Christian Advocate, Methodist magazine.

Writing on "The Spirit of St. Francis of Assisi," Dr. Hough declared that "the spirit of loving justice would make it impossible, for instance, for a Christian to refuse a Catholic for high public office in the United States."

Religious freedom, Dr. Hough pointed out, was the gift of the Catholic colony of Maryland as well as of the Protestant colony of Rhode Island.

GROUP SHED BLOOD

"It is surely clear enough that a man who belongs to a group whose blood has been shed upon everyone of our battlefields and whose purse has been open to all of our national needs, cannot be refused the highest offices, just because he belongs to that group," Dr. Hough continued.

"Doubtless there are Catholics for whom no sagacious man would vote when office of high public trust is at stake. Doubtless there are Methodists who are unfit for great positions of public trust. The question must be decided on the basis of personal character and for personal ability."

"If we have a great Protestant majority in America, all the more do we have the gravest responsibility in respect of our justice and fair play and—if we have captured a little of the spirit of St. Francis—of generosity and chivalry toward the religious minorities in our land. There is no surer test of the moral and spiritual quality of a religious majority than the fashion in which it treats minorities which for the time can be safely outvoted."

EMPEROR'S SON SHOWS SKILL IN ALPINE CLIMB

Chamonix, France.—(AP)—Prince Chichibu, second son of the emperor of Japan, was one of thousands who gratified their desire to scale high mountains and made 1926 a banner year in Alpine climbing.

The prince proved his skill as a climber by conquering the Furgasthorn—the highest in the Bernese Oberland, the Gross Schreckhorn and the Matterhorn. The last ascent took place on the birthday of his father, the mikado, and the prince had the unusual experience of celebrating the great national Japanese festival "Ten Chosoten" on the summit of one of the highest peaks in the Alps.

Goes to Conference

George F. Werner, general secretary of Appleton Y. M. C. A., left Tuesday evening for Chicago where he will attend the meeting of the national council of the association. The meeting ends Saturday. Judson G. Rosebush, vice president of the local association and a national board member, already is at the meeting.

Centenary Of Beethoven Death Is Being Observed

Beethoven's centenary finds music in a transitional period, as it was when the little German composer died.

When Beethoven lived, the domination of the nineteenth century was encroaching slowly on eighteenth century formalism. It was in the combination of the newer romanticism with the beauty of form developed by the eighteenth century masters that he excelled.

The musical world will revive virtually all of his compositions this season in observance of the centenary. He wrote nine overtures, nine symphonies and thirty-eight piano sonatas. His principal vocal work is "Fidelio," an opera.

Like Haydn and Mozart, Beethoven was of peasant birth. Finding his home intolerable on account of his father's intemperance and the early death of his mother, the erratic genius turned early to music, and published his first work in 1783.

FITS OF TEMPER

One such incident concerns a Vienna woman who admired him so ardently that she was bent on having a lock of Beethoven's hair for her own. A friend of the composer suggested to him in a jocular spirit, that a lock of goat's hair would suffice just as well, and Beethoven, in a spirit of hilarity, acquiesced, and sent her a lock of goat's hair, the color and coarse texture of which resembled his own. Later the woman heard of the joke and accused Beethoven of perpetrating it. His fury fell upon the friend who suggested the ruse. While he immediately cut off a lock of his own hair and sent it to his admirer, it is said that he never forgave his ingenious friend.

NEVER COULD TEACH

It was on account of his unstable disposition that he was never able to teach and thus pass to his pupils the power of his genius. Only one man, Relis, studied directly under the master and can be said to have been his pupil.

During the latter years of his life, complete deafness overtook Beethoven, but the ability to compose was not dependent on auditory faculties, and it was after his hearing was quite gone that he composed Missa Solenne, one of his most famous works. At his death in 1826, it is said that 20,000 people attended the funeral.

Your Question and Its Answer

QUESTION: I am continually a nut fever with nervousness, insomnia and general weakness which handicaps me in giving my employer the service I am paid to give. Two of your patients have advised me to take a course of Chiropactic. Will it interfere with my work in any way?

ANSWER: "I will read and learn and perhaps my chance will come"—Abraham Lincoln.

The great benefits of life come to those that investigate and learn new facts. Is your knowledge of the science of Chiropactic based upon actual experience in the hands of a competent Chiropactor or is it based upon what you have heard from some prejudiced or uninformed person? Or is it as a matter of fact that you have given my science but little or no thought? It is to your interest that you be correctly informed. The efficiency of my science in mastering chronic diseases is illustrative of what a competent Chiropactor can accomplish in acute diseases in general, such as colds, pneumonia, pleurisy, acute conditions of the stomach, heart, liver, eye, ear, nose and the various febrile affections.

Do you know that chronic diabetes, brights disease and many other chronic conditions heretofore classed as incurable are curable, that fully 90 per cent of such case are restored to health under my care? Do you know that more than 75 per cent of tubercular cases that come under my care get well?

That goitres are eliminated without resort to surgery? Health is your greatest asset and these facts should be of vital interest to you.

Prompted by a desire to give the public a chance to be correctly informed about Chiropactic I have adopted this method to spread the better knowledge of Chiropactic as a possible method of correcting the cause of sickness and interests of better health. Inquiries of practical value will be answered in order received if addressed to

NEENAH SEEKS BUS ROUTE TO CEMETERY

Mayor Will Demand That Utility Company Reduce Its Fares

Neenah—The Wisconsin Light & Power company, operating the interurban car line between Neenah and Fond du Lac, is to be asked to furnish a half-hour local bus service between the business section of Neenah and the cemetery on the west city limits. A meeting between Superintendent J. Frank of the car line and Mayor J. H. Denhardt was held Wednesday morning at the mayor's office, on the project. The car line originally operated as a half-hour bus between Riverside park and Oak Hill cemetery under its original franchise. This car was taken off and hourly service given between the business section and the cemetery. Several months ago this service was taken off and the interurban car every two hours carried local passengers at a cost of 25 cents in the city limits and placed a bus to operate on the odd hour, but this was operated over a different route leaving only two hours service to the west side of the city. Mayor Denhardt is to demand a reduction of the fare within the city limits to not exceed 7 cents which was the original fare charged.

WEATHER CONDITIONS
A low pressure area is moving eastward along the Canadian border. It is attended by considerable cloudiness over the north and will cause cloudiness and probably somewhat unsettled conditions in this section this afternoon and tonight. A rise in pressure, with generally fair weather, should follow by Thursday. With high pressure in the southeast and this low to the northward temperatures are moderate to mild for the season.

Finish Foundation
The foundation for the one story brick building to be erected at 324 W. College-ave was completed Tuesday and carpenters started work Wednesday morning. The building is to be 60 feet long and 20 feet wide and will be completed about Nov. 20. It is to be owned by H. G. Thomas of the Carroll, Thomas and Carroll real estate company.

DIVIDENDS PAID ON ASSETS BEFORE 1925 NOT TAXABLE

Decision Is Handed Down Recently by Wisconsin Supreme Court

Dividends declared out of appreciation of corporate assets and paid prior to 1925 are not taxable, according to a recent decision handed down by the Wisconsin State Supreme Court. The directing order was written by Justice Ad J. Vinje and none of the other members of the high court dissented. The decision came as a reversal of a decision by Circuit Judge Otto H. Breitenbach, Milwaukee, in the suit of the Hansen Storage Co., against the city clerk of that city.

In the issue $235,000 worth of stock was declared solely on appreciation of corporate value of the storage company and as such was held non-taxable by the high court.

The decision will have a widespread effect on taxation throughout the state, it is believed.

A technicality is almost certain to arise as to refunds to be paid where such stock has been taxed in the past five years as to whether or not refunds will be allowed where no protest was filed when the tax was paid, it was pointed out.

Complaint, it was stated, would have to be filed with either the county or city clerk in the former case, and the matter would be taken before the county board and in the latter before a city council.

If an adverse decision was met by the taxpayer he would then have recourse to the circuit courts, it is believed although the decision has been too recent to bring forth the issue.

Outagamie-co is not affected to any great degree although several such cases might conceivably arise here, it was stated.

4 SCHOOLS BOAST BANKING HONORS

Perfect Record Is Attained by Institutions for Week Ending Oct. 12

Four schools had perfect records in Thrift, Inc., school banking system during the week ending Oct. 12. The highest number having 100 per cent depositors earlier in the year was two, Columbus, McKinley, Lincoln and Wilson were the four honor schools last week.

Ninety-four per cent of the 2,781 students enrolled in the schools or 2,578 children, deposited in the school account last week. There were 13 withdrawals of $119.71 made, and interest credited for the week was $10.60. The week's deposit of $531.67 left a total fund of $21,030.91 in the school account.

Records of the schools were: Columbus school, 228 enrolled, 228 depositors, $82.79 deposited; Franklin school, 257 enrolled, 248 depositors, $82.22 deposited; Fourth ward school, 205 enrolled, 207 depositors, $27.21 deposited; Richmond school, 77 enrolled, 73 depositors, $6.43 deposited; McKinley school, 90 enrolled, 90 depositors, $23.10 deposited; Lincoln school, 150 enrolled, 150 depositors, $31.56 deposited; First ward school, 409 enrolled, 404 depositors, $105.32 deposited; Roosevelt school, 262 enrolled, 233 depositors, $74.60 deposited; Appleton high school, 778 enrolled, 631 depositors, $116.48 deposited; Wilson junior high school, 204 enrolled, 204 depositors, $67.46 deposited.

YOUNG WIFE CHARGES HUSBAND LEFT HER

Erna Berg, 22 years old, was granted absolute divorce, the custody of a minor child and $30 a month alimony, by Judge Theodore Berg in municipal court Tuesday when her suit against her husband, Harold, was called.

Desertion was alleged in the complaint. Mr. Berg is believed to be in the army but his whereabouts are unknown and the charges were not contested.

The couple were married in 1923.

Guide Couldn't Kid Coolidge But Cal Kidded His Guide

EDITOR'S NOTE: The man who is best acquainted with the informal moods of Calvin Coolidge is Ormon Doty, veteran guide of the Adirondacks, who accompanied the President on daily fishing trips. For NEA Service and (Post-Crescent) this woodsman tells some of the intimate little anecdotes of the presidential vacation.

BY ORMON DOTY
Gabriel's, N. Y.—People around here call me the only man who ever kidded President Coolidge.

They're wrong. I don't believe any man ever kidded him, and that includes Will Rogers. You see, this President of ours says far too little to furnish any kind of sport for jokers.

I've been guiding in these mountains for more than 30 years, and in that time I've learned that it's part of a guide's business to keep his party entertained.

It was hard to figure out just what Mr. Coolidge wanted. He'd laugh at funny stories, but never once did he tell one himself. But when I'd go dry on talk, he'd sort of prod me up with a question.

Finally, I was desperate for stories, so I told him about the time I was in a boat washing a red flannel shirt and an enormous pike came up and swallowed everything but the sleeve I had a hold of. The pike started on and I hung on, because it was my best shirt. When I finally got scared and let go, the boat was going so fast that it ran 50 feet on shore and smashed to splinters.

"Is that so," said the President, never cracking a smile.

PRESIDENT COULDN'T SWALLOW THIS

Then I told him about the time I caught four fish on one hook. You see, a sucker swallowed the worm, a trout swallowed the sucker, a bass grabbed the trout and a pike gobbled the bass.

"That's very interesting," said the President and went on fishing.

I just happened to mention a 13-pounder I'd caught early in the season. I could tell he didn't believe a word of it, but he didn't say anything. Later, when I pulled in one that weighed 18 pounds, I saw him laughing. "Apologies, Doty," he said, "I'll believe anything you tell me after this."

"Take a good big chew or you won't look natural, Doty," cautioned President Coolidge before this picture of his guide was snapped.

The closest I ever saw the President come to getting angry was when we were sitting in a boat and saw a regular whale of a pike come up and sniff at the President's bait. He swam around and looked at it, rubbed against it and played with it. Then he flipped a fin at the President and sid off.

"He's a mean old devil," Mr. Coolidge growled. "Hope he starves to death."

Several of the party at White Pines were colored boys who had worked in Washington. They asked about a knife I carried and I explained that the woods were full of bears and showed them some tracks I'd made. That night when some of them started for Saranac to see the town they were armed with every clever and knife in the camp's kitchen.

BEARS—THREE OF THEM!
Just for a joke I sneaked through the woods and let out a growl as they went by. It was several miles to Saranac and about half a mile to camp. But I'd just got there when I got a telephone call from the town.

"Mistah Doty, ah jes' wanted to tell you we has been chased by bears," Yassuh, three of 'em run us all the way to th' city limits."

Next day, out fishing, the President said, as seriously as anything, "Any bears around here, Doty?" I said some people had seen tracks and heard growls. "That's fine," said the President, straight-faced, "now we'll know where those boys are." Not one of them ever left camp after dusk after that.

DRIVER OF UNLICENSED CAR IS FINED $10

Edward Lyons, 1713 S. Oneida-st., picked up by Motorcycle Patrolman Alfred Dunn on a charge of operating an automobile without a license was fined $10 and costs of $5.20 when arraigned in municipal court Tuesday morning.

Mr. Coolidge was a good walker. I remember once when we were late for dinner and two miles to go. The President was stopping it off so fast that Cal Ols, the camp caretaker, who was along with us, had to run once in a while to keep up. I couldn't resist saying Otis a little, but the President cut me short:

"Doty, Otis is cold."

There was no love-feasting or political palaver during that vacation. Once we found a lake was posted with a "private" sign and a secret service man brought the owner so Mr. Coolidge could ask permission to fish. The man wanted to have a little chat, so he said, "Mr. Coolidge, my father voted for you in Massachusetts and I voted for you at the last—"

"We're not voting now. We're fishing," snapped the President, and that was that.

There was two times when Mr. Coolidge laughed harder than I ever thought he could laugh. Once was when one of the colored boys, surprised at looking a fighter, stood up in the boat to reel him in hand-over-hand and fell in the water when the line broke.

I dressed him in, safe but chilly. "Yan, man, that lake's deep. I swum straight up for five minutes." Mr. President, sah, stay outen them boats, Jecsen yo' name gwine to be Daves."

This was the other big laugh. Ever see a hellgommite, one of those thousand-larged bugs they use for bass bait? I'm scared to death of them, and the President knew it. He figured I shouldn't be, so he put one in my tobacco one morning when I wasn't looking. I'll bet he's laughing yet.

No, I never kidded President Coolidge. But maybe I'm the only man President Coolidge ever kidded.

CLAIM $100,000 IN RELATIVE'S DEATH

Chicago Kinsman of Man Who Died in Badger City Charge Mutilation

Wisconsin Rapids — (P) — Chicago relatives of August Cienas, Chicagoan, whose death near here three years ago remains unsolved, have started damage suits for $100,000 against several Wood-co residents whom they charge with responsibility for mutilation of Cienas' body in a postmortem examination.

It was learned Tuesday that the suit has been started in the Western Wisconsin District court by Selma Cienas, Arimovich, niece, and Alex Yuriss, nephew of Cienas, whose body was found at the side of a road in Milladore, 20 miles from here, Oct. 22, 1923. There were two holes in the skull.

Defendants in the suit are E. N. Pomerville, Justice of the peace; R. R. Williams, former district attorney; Marshfield; J. R. Ragan, and John Ernswen, undertakers; Doctor Don Waters, E. A. Hougen and P. X. Pomerville, this city, and Doctors V. A. Mason and Erich Wisol, Marshfield.

The suits charge mutilation of the body. The physicians named as defendants conducted the postmortem and the others were connected with the investigation.

FIXING TELEPHONE RATES

The Wisconsin Railroad commission has made important decisions in the telephone rate cases of Superior and Beloit. At both points it disallowed approximately half of the license charges made to the Wisconsin Telephone company by the parent corporation, the American Telephone and Telegraph company. It ordered this reduction on the ground that the hearings had disclosed no such value of services rendered by the A. T. & T. as were paid for in the standard charge to subsidiaries of 4 per cent of their gross revenue for the use of instruments and certain devices. The commission laid down the rule, which is obviously justified, that the subsidiary should pay license charges based on cost, and since both the Wisconsin Telephone company and the A. T. & T. refuse to disclose the cost of the service, it is warranted in assuming that the 4 per cent charge is excessive. We believe there is no reasonable doubt as to the facts.

The whole hook-up between the A. T. & T. and its subsidiaries has suspicious aspects. There is a feeling that the parent corporation is collecting more for its devices and alleged services than it is entitled to, and that the telephone subscribers of Wisconsin are footing the bill. The commission's decision in the Beloit and Superior cases puts the company in an awkward position and if it elects to challenge the ruling the burden of proof to show that the license charges are legitimate will fall on its shoulders. We now have the telephone company on the defensive in this phase of the controversy between it and municipalities. Up to this time it was the municipalities and the subscribers which were on the defensive. One of the healthiest things that could happen to the telephone industry, so far as the public is concerned, would be to open up the relations between the A. T. & T. and its subsidiaries and ascertain just what they are.

In the Beloit case the commission allowed but one-third of the increase in rates asked by the telephone company. This also is of special interest to other cities which are fighting proposed rate increases which appear to be out of all reason.

For the first time in the history of Wisconsin's telephone affairs, the legitimacy of rates and practices are being seriously questioned. Those municipalities which have resisted rate increases and have brought the issue to a head are doing a valuable service to the entire state and the facilities and cooperation extended by the railroad commission to bring out a thorough presentation of the facts are equally valuable.

BIG ASSIGNMENT FOR MARIE

It develops that Queen Marie has not been ordered home by the powers that be in her absence. The Roumanian foreign office officially denies the reports that the government had requested the queen to abbreviate her visit in the United States. It also denied the existence of any telegram from King Ferdinand soliciting the queen's return.

Queen Marie must accustom herself while in democratic America to some of the licenses it practices in the name of freedom. She must accommodate herself to a sensational press and to unreliable news reporters and correspondents. She must even accept pure inventions as one of the enjoyable pastimes of a privileged press. She must tell them all how wonderful she thinks America is, including its faults and weaknesses.

So far she has made an admirable job of it. She must not spoil the picture or her popularity by showing resentment at our playful newspapers and news agencies.

She must learn that America is perfect only to Americans and she must give us credit for virtues we do not possess. All this we are sure Marie will do, for she is a very tactful woman as well as a diplomatic queen.

INDIANA MUST CLEAN HOUSE

Indiana was one of the storm centers of the Klan regime. At one time the Klan had 400,000 paid memberships there. It was inevitable that it should be a power and a controversy in politics. Investigation now in progress discloses that many of its leading politicians were afraid of it and catered to it. Some of them made bargains with it and were controlled by it. The records of both Senators Watson and Robinson are tinged with Klanism, and the evil name it bears in that state. Mr. Watson may not lose the election because of it, but his standing with the people of Indiana must be considerably lowered by what has already been brought to light. There has been an immense amount of graft, corruption and favoritism in Indiana government as a result of Klan influence. Already it has become a great scandal and if the full truth of its operation is brought to light, it will be a much greater scandal.

Today the Klan is on its last legs in Indiana. Its paid membership has dwindled down to less than 30,000. Politicians and office-seekers instead of soliciting openly or covertly its support, are trying to assure the voters they have no connection with it. They are upholding or defending themselves against it. Indiana has had a sorry experience with Klanism. Its politics has been in recent years in a depraved state. A former governor and a former head of the Klan are in the penitentiary. Indiana is confronted by a challenge and that challenge is to clean house and restore its government to something approaching honesty and competency.

BULLY FOR 'EM!

It is as objectionable a gesture to tip the barber who shaves you as to tip the coloratura soprano who sings for you.

So decrees the Barber Supply Dealers' Association in high and solemn convention.

Neither beauty workers nor barbers should be tipped for their work, elaborated the convention, because they are artists with a creative touch.

Tipping has grown to continental proportions in America. We tip the waitress, the shoe shiner, the paper boy, the porter, the taxi driver, the head waiter, until our tipping is a sizeable part of our budget—and a nuisance.

"Bully for the barber dealers! Long may their propaganda spread." A lot of folks will shout.

CONTENTMENT

Money and fame and health alone
Are not enough for a man to own.
For healthy men are heard to sigh
And men of wealth will play his part
And one with fame will play his part
With a troubled mind and a heavy heart.
If these three treasures no joy possess,
How shall a man find happiness?

Health comes first in the famous three,
But cripples can smile, as we all must see,
Fame is sweet, as we all must own,
But the happiest hearts are not widely known.
Money is good, when it's truly earned,
But peace with fortune is not concerned,
For the bravest and loveliest souls we know
Have little of silver or gold to show.

Yet there must be a way to the goal we seek,
A path to peace for the strong and weak,
And it must be open for all to fare,
In spite of life's sorrows and days of care,
For those who have suffered the most the while
Look out on the world with the tenderest smile,
And those who have little of wealth to boast
Are often the ones that we love the most.

So I fancy the joy which men strive to win
Is born of something which lies within,
A strain of courage no care can break,
A love for beauty no thief can take,
For they are the happiest souls of earth
Who gather the treasures of gentle worth,
The pride of neighbors, the faith of friends
And a mind at peace when the sun descends.

WHY KEEP YOUR OLD TONSILS?

That the tonsil has no function and serves no useful purpose is an assumption which is not warranted at present, but even if we assume that the tonsil may contribute something toward natural immunity against the respiratory infections (and this is only an assumption which has not been definitely proved), there is a reasonable assumption which must go along with that, namely, that the supposititious or hypothetical protective function of the tonsil is lost when the tonsil becomes badly damaged by infection or disease or wasted and shrunken by atrophy.

There is some reason to believe that the normal tonsil, at least in early childhood, may produce and constantly send into the throat mucus or secretions and thence into the saliva numerous phagocytic cells called salivary corpuscles, which ingest and destroy disease germs. These corpuscles find their way out of the substance of the tonsil by way of the little openings or crypts which dip into the tonsil from the surface.

Well and good. Take equal parts of this reasonable assumption, prejudice, passion instinctive dread of "the knife," and certain superstitious notions fostered by the drugless quacks and the finger surgeons, and you have the makings of a fairly common obsession that it is harmful to remove the tonsils.

Most absurd of all these notions is one which is generally whispered, because it is unmentionable, but for the decaffeination of the reader who may harbor such a notion, let me say that there is absolutely no connection between the tonsils and manhood or womanhood.

Like visiting the dentist when one has neglected the care of teeth, the thought of an operation on the tonsils is always unpleasant and we are eager to snatch at every possible objection. One objection often trumped up is that the operation will injure the voice, if the individual happens to have vocal talent or aspiration. The truth is that removal of the tonsils often improves a singing voice, and it is only from accident or injury of the pillar of the throat in a difficult dissection of submerged or adhesion bound tonsils that any impairment of the singing voice is likely to happen. This doesn't apply to the case of children, but only where badly diseased and long neglected tonsils are concerned.

Recent development of X-ray treatment for hypertrophy or simple enlargement of tonsils and adenoids, body causes some people to hesitate or procrastinate. The X-ray treatment is all right for those who can afford it, if a pure hypertrophy is to be shrunk. It is quite useless if the tonsils or adenoid body are infected or diseased.

Other than the ordinary surgical means—dissection, snaring—may be advisable in certain circumstances. But that is a technical matter for the physician to consider. It is certainly unwise for a patient to seek to have the tonsils "burned out" or "clipped" or otherwise dealt with.

If there is reason to suspect the patient may be a "bleeder," subject to hemophilia, let the physician investigate that and employ the proper preventive measures if the operation is decided on.

Not only the method of operating, but also the anesthetic should be left entirely to the judgment of the physician. If he is capable of advising whether tonsils should be operated on he is capable of selecting the most satisfactory and safest anesthetic for the patient.

The assumption that the tonsils, in health, aid in the natural immunity process, is tenable only for the period of childhood. In adult life the tonsils certainly serve no such purpose, whether they become a menace or not.

To settle an argument please tell me if anything can be absorbed through the blood? How does poison ivy get into the system? M. H.

Answer.—I do not understand your first question. If you meant to ask whether anything can be absorbed through the skin, the answer is no, not through the skin. The poison ivy dermatitis isn't absorbed until the skin becomes blistered or broken by scratching.

I should appreciate a prescription for a good disinfectant that could be used in a public school classroom. (P. F. A.)

Answer.—Other than soap and water and air and sunlight, I know of no disinfectant which could be of any service in a classroom.

BEGINNING TO STICK IN OUR CRAW

LIBRARY ADVENTURES

By Arnold Mulder

IN THE LIBRARY

GALSWORTHY'S LAST PLAY

In connection with the performance recently in London of a new play by John Galsworthy, called "Escape," it was announced that with that play Galsworthy would definitely abandon the theatre and that he would never write another play.

This rather amazing announcement is not without parallel in literature. There are several cases on record of a famous writer deliberately announcing at some time in his career that he would never write another novel or another play or another poem. Often these announcements are the fruit of temporary weariness. A writer, if he is of the right sort, often drains his vitality almost to the last drop in producing a work of art. He gives himself to the very limit, sometimes to the extent of putting his very flesh and blood literally into his work, so that actual physical recuperation is necessary. And there comes a time in the writing of a book, at least in the case of many writers, when the author feels that the whole thing is foolish and worthless and a waste of time and energy. He feels he is a fool not to be making a living in a more pleasant way like other men and that a month after his book has appeared no one will remember it.

At this point of exhaustion many a writer vows that he will never be foolish enough to write another book or another play. He swears off just as a toper vows he will never drink or another drop. And like the toper, the writer, after he has time to recuperate, forgets his vows and begins another book and still another. The third to physical takes hold of him just as the physical thirst takes hold of the toper. In the theatrical history a similar thing is very familiar. Every European star announces at least five times that he or she will never make another American tour and then next year there is another tour as usual.

The famous case of a writer deliberately announcing that he would never again write a novel and sticking to the decision is that of Thomas Hardy. When "Jude the Obscure" was published he said in print that he would never again write a novel, in spite of the fact that he was only 60 years old and at the very height of his powers. Today he is in the middle eighties and for 25 years he has kept his vow. He has written and published poetry but from that day to this he has not published a novel.

In the case of Hardy the blame is usually laid on stupid reviewers. They had attacked "Jude the Obscure" was bitterly on the score of morality and Hardy was deeply disgusted. But it is hardly likely that that alone would have made him stick to his resolve. After a few years even the bitterest criticisms lose their force and it is not likely that a genuine artist like Hardy would have allowed critics to keep him from the exercise of his art. He wanted to write poetry and the publication of his monumental work, "The Dynasts," has convinced many competent critics that he was right to make the decision. Very probably at the height of his powers his interest in poetry was greater than his interest in fiction. He had made enough money out of fiction to live comfortably and he could afford the luxury of writing what he pleased.

That was perhaps the real reason for the famous announcement. No reason is given for Galsworthy's decision. He has been writing novels and plays for about 25 or 30 years. He has published some 20 novels and some 20 plays. And while his novels are in opinion of many more significant than his plays, he is not to be despised as a playwright. His work in the theatre has never been trivial. Perhaps his interest in the novel is greater than his interest in his play and at the age of 52 he wants to devote the years that are left him to the novel.

But there are many themes that lend themselves to the play form and are not suitable to the novel form. When such a theme occurs to Galsworthy, will he leave it unused? This will be interesting to watch.

The Question Box

Q. Can you tell me anything of the superstition that it is bad luck to walk under a ladder? E. S.

A. Nothing definite is known concerning the origin of the superstition in regard to walking under a ladder. According to some authorities the idea is traceable to the fact that Christ was taken down from the Cross by means of a ladder. There is a general belief in England that if a woman walks under a ladder she will not be married within the year. It is more probable, however, that the idea is associated with the possible danger of falling objects, since persons employing a ladder for work generally carry tools which might fall on a passerby.

Q. What was the first fraternity in the United States? J. J. H.

A. The first American college fraternity of which there is a record was the "Flat Hat Club" that appeared at the College of William and Mary in 1750 and continued in existence until after 1772. It was secret, literary, and social. The oldest Greek letter fraternity in this country now in existence is the Phi Beta Kappa, organized in 1776.

Q. Can you tell me the height of the steps of the Great Pyramid in Egypt? I. K.

A. The steps of the Great Pyramid are four feet ten inches high.

Q. What is the yell-y substance in the crab? F. J. B.

A. The yell-y substance which is found in a crab are mostly fat. Some portions of it may be the eggs and the ovaries.

Q. Please tell me which is the largest Protestant church in America, and also the largest in the world? N. F.

A. The largest Protestant church in the United States is the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York City. The largest Protestant church in the world is St. Paul's Cathedral in London, England.

Q. What is proper to give parrots to keep them in good health? B. H.

A. A hard boiled egg rubbed into a paste and mixed with an equal quantity of crack crumbs and a teaspoonful of cayenne pepper may be relished by the bird. Skin diseases are usually caused by feeding meat or too rich or oily food. It is usually sufficient to change the food by giving a plain diet and some vegetables and fresh fruit.

Unless the bird is very young it should be supplied with moist food and water, as well as some salty food. A little sulphur in the food will help purify the blood.

Q. Where is the deepest well in the world? F. S. R.

A. Some of the deepest wells in the world are as follows: Lake Well, completed 1919, 8 miles southeast of Fairmont, West Virginia, 7575 feet; Well on Goff Farm, 8 miles northeast of Clarkburg, West Virginia, 7386 feet; Cauchow, Germany, 7348 feet; and Geary Well, 20 miles southwest of Pittsburgh, 7248 feet.

Q. What is the largest steer of which there is any record? E. B. M.

A. The Department of Agriculture says that the record appears to be held by a Scotch horn steer that weighed 3,700 pounds. He belonged to a man named Harris of Champaign, Illinois, about 40 years ago.

Q. I have been told that some piano tuners do what they call "voicing" a piano. Can you tell me what this is? B. H.

A. In voicing a piano, the hammers are softened in order to make the tone more uniform. This process does not prevent a piano from being tuned afterwards.

ADVERTISING CLUB SPONSORS COURSE IN COPY WRITING

First Lesson Will Be Offered Thursday Night at Chamber of Commerce

A post graduate course in copy writing, consisting of seven lessons and open to all merchants, and manufacturers of Appleton, will open Thursday evening in the Chamber of Commerce. The course is being sponsored and will be taught by members of the Appleton Advertising club. A portfolio used by the Advertising club of New York in its public course last year, is to be used.

If the course proves popular, the local club will sponsor classes for beginners at Jan. 1, 1927. There will be room in the present class for 20 students and it is expected that there will be a capacity enrollment. The class is to be offered free of charge, the only cost to the student being the charge for the portfolio. The class will meet at 7:30 every Thursday evening for seven weeks.

Lesson one will consist of a lecture by the instructor on the week's lesson and will be followed by a general discussion.

Letter correspondence and direct mail advertising will be the subject of lesson 1, prepared by John Howie Wright, editor and publisher of Post-ge.

Lesson 2 will consist of the study of local newspaper copy. Material for the study of this course was prepared by Amos Parrish, of the consultant advertising staff of the Retail Review service.

Trade and technical paper copy is to be the topic under discussion at the third lesson. This lesson was prepared by Harry Rippert, general sales manager of the General Motors Export company.

Mail order copy will be studied at the fourth lesson, the material for which was furnished by Walter Osterlander, vice president of the Appleton Builders.

Lesson 5 will consist of the study of a national magazine advertising campaign. This lesson was prepared by B. M. Swasey, vice president of the American Weekly.

A national magazine advertising campaign will be discussed at the sixth lesson. The material for this class was organized by E. B. Calkins, president of the Calkins and Hudson company.

Coordination of advertising in general is to be the subject of the last lesson which was prepared by George W. Hopkins, vice president of sales of the Coral Gables corporation.

10,000 TEACHERS TO ATTEND MEETING

Three-day Conference Will Open at Madison Thursday, Nov. 4

Milwaukee—(AP)—More than ten thousand public school instructors and educational leaders from all parts of the United States are expected to attend the seventy-third annual meeting of the Wisconsin Teachers' association, opening a three day conference here Nov. 4.

General sessions will be held each morning with department programs, covering every phase of the educational program, constituting the afternoon activities of the teachers. Prominent journalists educators and religious representatives will speak before the general sessions, which are to be held in the auditorium.

Beginning Thursday morning with an address by Charles H. Judd, psychologist of Chicago, the convention program calls for numerous addresses and reports by educational authorities as well as Will Irvin, author. The convention will adjourn at noon, Saturday, November 6.

The Milwaukee teachers' association chorus, directed by Alfred Bergen will sing at the opening meeting. Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes of the Methodist Episcopal church, will deliver the second address of the Thursday morning meeting.

In the evening the Russian Symphony Choir, Basil Kibachick directing, will give a concert offered jointly under the auspices of the Milwaukee association of commerce and the teachers' association.

Thursday afternoon departmental meetings will be held in various meeting places in the city with agriculture, commercial, science and home economics groups included among the representative branches.

The Milwaukee Vocational school board will open the Friday morning session followed by an address on "This Modern Age" by Mr. Lippman. "Propaganda and the News" will be discussed by Will Irvin at the same session.

Afternoon department meetings will be devoted to all sciences, art, biology, chemistry, civics, debating, dramatics, interpretive reading, educational measurements and the education of the deaf. Elementary principals will meet at the same time.

After a half-hour concert by the Wauwatosa high school band at the

NEW DIRECTOR

Marshall C. Graff, Wausau, who has been appointed director of the University Extension division, Appleton district, to succeed Chester Allen, newly appointed field organizer of the entire state. Mr. Graff, former director of the Wausau district, officially took over his work here last week.

DEPUTY COUNTY CLERKS WON'T BE APPOINTED

No deputy county clerks will be appointed to distribute absent voters' ballots to be cast at the coming general elections and in cases of illness County Clerk John E. Hantschel will personally deliver the ballot to the sick voter and return the vote to his office. It was announced Tuesday.

Mr. Hantschel also will visit the sanatorium with ballots, it was stated. Considerable rumor has been heard that deputies have been appointed to take care of this phase of the election but such is not the case and all work will be handled by the clerk only, it was reported Tuesday.

Opening of the Saturday morning meeting, B. T. Devine of Washington, D. C., author and lecturer, will speak. "The Human Side of Woman" will be discussed by Ida Clyde Clarke of New York, author.

No departmental meetings will be held Saturday afternoon although discussion among the teachers not concluded at Thursday and Friday round table sessions may be held over.

The association represents 20,000 teachers of the state, and adequate preparations for hotel and rooming accommodations have been made by officers of the organization in cooperation with the convention bureau of the Milwaukee association of commerce. Railroads have granted reduced rates to the teachers during the period of the convention.

Officers of the teachers' association are Frank O. Holt, Janesville, president; Edgar G. Doudna, Madison, secretary; Guy F. Loomis, Kenosha, vice president; and treasurer, D. H. Wright, Oshkosh, Elizabeth McCormick, Superior, and Paul D. Clemens, Milwaukee.

REAL ESTATE SALES GROW IN APPLETON WITH CROP HARVEST

Disappointing Yield Decreased Business for Property Salesmen

Hesitancy of buyers to acquire property during the summer months is said to be the cause for the sudden increase in real estate sales at the present time, according to Appleton dealers. Many buyers were awaiting the harvest of this year's farm crops because a good crop would mean increased prosperity. Rents are high and in many cases homes can be bought for a small payment down and a small monthly payment, which is nearly as small as a monthly rental.

Rather than pay rent all winter, many people prefer to buy at the present time. Many farmers will accept a fair price for their property, because they are discouraged with this year's crops. Real estate men here say that it is a mistake to sell farm property at this time, because farm values are sure to rise within the next year. They consider farm property a good investment at present.

"The past summer has been one of the dullest since I have been in business in Appleton," one real estate dealer remarked.

POOR FAIRING YEAR

While the summer was dull in the real estate business, it was expected by most of the dealers that a successful year for the farmers would do much to make the business better.

The present rush is said to be that of families who wish to settle before winter arrives. Many of the present sales are being made to out of town people who want to make Appleton their home.

Trades Council Meets
Appleton Trade and Labor council will hold its semi monthly meeting Wednesday evening at Trades and Labor hall. Routine business will be transacted.

Your Name Probably Will Tell What Ancestors Were

When the lexicographers got through with Adam we discovered an odd thing about his name. It is not just "Adam," a proper name, but the Hebrew word for "first man." And Adam isn't the only one who has been found out. All the people with names such as Sadder, Baker, Smith or Fowler find their ancestors looming before them in their occupational costumes, aristocratic or not, while others whose names end in "ton" or "ham" find that their forebears may have owned a town or hamlet in England.

Some of the very earliest personal names were those applied to tribes, not individuals, and were derived from peculiar customs or rites of that group. Thus many of the savages of today are identified from their totem or symbol of the origin of the tribe. Such were the Indians of North America who believed their ancestors were bears, wolves, or what not, and wore badges representing this or that animal, plant or natural object.

In addition to the totem name, local groups of men received local names. Some of the most picturesque are the "hall men", "the cave men", "the bush men", "the men of the plains," and so on. "Eskimo" is a slightly uncomplimentary local name applied by some other group to those men living in the north. It means "raw eater."

Personal names bestowed on the individual may number three or four or five, including names given at birth, at ceremonial, and names given for honor. Could we get a savage—an Iroquois, for example—to explain his titles, we would find that he is, say, "Morning Cloud" (by birth name) "Hungry Wolf" (name received at ceremonial) and "He that raises the white fellow's scalp" (honor-giving name).

Our English ancestors had compound names that smacked of blood and thunder and war, such as "Noble Wolf" and "Wolf of War." In a later stage of society the poetry of primitive things vanished and more vulgar nicknames and personal descriptions such as "Long", "Brown" and "White" were used. Other names were derived from crafts and still others from places. The noble and landowner was called "of" such and such a place while those poorer and humbler were called not "of" but "at" such and such a place. The "of" still survives in "von" of the German and "de" of French.

Almost any personal or proper name can be analyzed into its original meaning by someone who is proficient at languages, and knows something of their early stages. The suffix "son" means, of course, "son of", "ing" means "children of". Many names have gone through so many countries and changes that they are scarcely recognizable while others have retained their original form. Those who delve into the origins of their own names may find they are descendants of great and valiant warriors or they may find that their name means "chinless" or "baldheaded."

LAWRENCE GRADUATE HONORED BY SOCIETY

The Royal Society of Arts in London recently honored Rheinhardt Thiesen, a graduate of Lawrence college in the class of 1895, with a silver medal given in recognition of an address delivered before the society this year. He is now a member of the faculty of the University of Sheffield in Sheffield, England.

ARRANGE PROGRAM FOR ROAD INSPECTION TRIP

Highway Commissioner A. C. Brusewitz announced Thursday that the proposed road inspection trip to be submitted to county board will probably include stops for noonday lunch at Dale and perhaps Seymour. Tentatively the program will call for one day touring on completed highways and one day will be devoted to viewing uncompleted work and sites where petitions for new roads and improvements have been filed. It is thought between 40 and 60 persons will make the tour.

HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS FORM FORENSIC CLUB

A forensic club was organized at Appleton high school Monday evening by a group of 27 boys and girls interested in studying public speaking work. Plays probably will be presented by the club, debates organized and other miscellaneous work done at the suggestion of members during the year.

A committee was appointed to draw up a constitution and report at the next meeting of the group on Monday, Nov. 1. Members of the committee are Carl Nelson, Miss Beatrice Segal, Aloysius Gage and Donald McMain. The membership will be extended to 30 or 35 persons, it was said.

Considerable interest has been shown in such an organization this fall. Adam Aitchison, debate coach and faculty sponsor of the club, said. The Student council, as well as individuals have asked that the high school have a forensic organization.

Beauty Prizes Tell Story Of Why Girls Leave Home, Social Worker Says

HOLLYWOOD, Calif.—What shall we do with our bumper crop of beauty contest winners? The overproduction of beauty is becoming a real problem, points out Marjorie Williams of Hollywood, who as head of the Studio club, has become known as the House Mother of Hollywood.

"On the slightest provocation," she says, "every hamlet, town and city in this country holds a beauty contest without ever considering what is going to become of the title winners. Naturally, having won the distinction of being the prettiest girl in town, they feel they ought to do something about it. What they do is to take the next train for Hollywood to go into the movies."

"Most of them are totally ignorant of the picture situation, quite untrained to become actresses, often with no money, and not much real beauty, and they find their troubles begin from the time they try to make beauty their careers."

TRAGEDY FOR THEM

The Studio club, which is affiliated with the Young Women's Christian Association, has to deal with the problem of furnishing home and employment for beauties in distress. And Miss Williams has spent many hours urging girls to go back home and forget about their looks.

"But that is one of the hardest things for a girl to do, and that is exactly what causes so many of the tragedies and makes a girl liable to the temptations and heartbreaks that have made Hollywood notorious."

"A girl doesn't mind failing on a job like stenography or clerking, but she hates to fail down as a beauty. She might go home and admit failure in some cases, but after being singled out as the home town beauty, she feels a responsibility to extend her honors."

Miss Williams says that few winners of local beauty contests ever get a chance even to do small parts or work as extras in Hollywood, because the pretty girl is much easier to find than the girl with personality.

"In Hollywood, you realize how many pretty girls there are," she went on, "and how comparatively few there are who have that spark that makes the prettiness count."

The situation is infinitely better now than it was a year or two ago, Miss Williams says, and the difficulty of finding employment there seems to have been so generally broadcast that girls realize that just the car fare to Hollywood is not enough for the trip.

"A girl should have money enough to last her at least six months, and she should have a complete wardrobe of clothes including smart things for sport, street and evening, as well as a pretty face and ambition," Miss Williams insists.

The reports of Hollywood's revels have been greatly exaggerated even though it is and will probably be for a long time the gayest city on the coast.

Household Hints

STOCK IS MANDY

The meat from which you extract the juice to make soup may be used very nicely for croquettes or meat balls if you season it well and combine it with chopped vegetables or rice.

NEW BROWN BEAUTY

A delicious brown Betty is made by using chopped quinces instead of apples. Moistened with cider and sweetened them with honey.

TAKES 'EM OFF

Wet salt will remove those dark stains on silver that results from eggs.

FASHION HINTS

AFTERNOON FROCKS

Velvet and moire are successfully combined this season for afternoon costumes.

TASSELS USED

Many tassels are seen this year, those of bright wool on jersey being particularly popular.

JUMPER STYLE

Many velvet dresses for afternoon are made two-piece, combining a long jumper and a pleated skirt.

COATS BELTED

The belt is sure to appear on the winter coat, if not all the way around then in the back or front, and quite often it is ornate and conspicuous.

FUR ON GOWNS

Fur and silk are combined in certain very smart evening gowns—monkeys fur being especially desirable.

whether the thrill of John's absolute ignoring of everyone else around us meant love or not to me. At that moment, however, I thought it did. I said to myself, "I love his nearness, and I really have never wanted to have any man come so close to me before." I loved the feel of his fingers on my hair, although I knew that I should have remonstrated with him about it.

Even when I felt the iron harness of that shorter leg touch my ankle I had an odd kind of exhilaration—a queer thrill of rapture that I had never felt before.

Of course it was because unconsciously I knew that ugly appliance was a symbol of the scar that was upon his soul—a scar that had never healed—had never ceased to hurt until tonight, when I had been able to make him forget.

Tonight John Meredith knew for the first time in all his life that no pity entered into the response to his emotions.

My thoughts were rudely interrupted by a man coming to our table and saying something in a low voice to Joan. With a sinking of my heart I recognized him. He was the jackal who always carried out the ugly plans of the manager when it was necessary to do as The Beaux Arts.

I saw Joan looking up and about the table in a troubled way and saying: "I don't understand you and I consider what you have just said to me an insult." Surely you know who I am. I am Miss Meredith and my guests should be above criticism." The man grew bolder. Evidently he did not realize just who Joan was, "but perhaps you do not know that both these young ladies with you have been bad checkers in this establishment."

John heard this. For the first time he seemed to sense that something was going on that he should have a hand in. He looked at me inquiringly. He was completely mystified.

"What does that man want, Sis?" "Tell him the dinner and service are all right; the head waiter is doing everything for us possible. Dismiss him."

The man saw that he must explain. With an uneasy glance toward the door, from where the manager had sent him, he said: "I was just asking Miss Meredith if she really knew the guests she was entertaining," he inquired impudently.

WORK IS CURE FOR SPENDTHRIFT

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

"HAT'S that, dear?" asked the Girls' mother as the Girl came into the living room with two bundles.

The Girl laid one package on top of the phonograph and tossed the other on her mother's knee. "Just some little things I needed. Those are brassieres and silk stockings. Those are six new records."

Her mother opened the small package—the charge check in the hand of silk stockings bore the figures, "seven dollars."

"It seems just a day or two since you got stockings," she said with a sigh. "And these brassieres really don't have ten cents worth of silk in them. A dollar seems high. You have about a dozen now."

"Now, Mums, don't grumble," said the Girl. "I get the cheapest things I can. Those other stockings ran the first time I put them on. My lands! You'd think seven dollars was a fortune!"

"What records did you get?" "Six of the peachiest things you ever heard. 'Knick Knack Gnu' is just hot off the stove."

"You got six a week ago?"

"My lands! If I asked the kids to dance to them now, they'd walk out on me. Ab-o-tively old, they are. Say, Dick, run along and get me ten gallons of gas. I'm the girls to the country. Pops, I'm sorry you have a cold, but it's jolly nice to have the car all the time."

Pops counted up. "Thirteen dollars and a half in one morning. And the day was young. Besides there was always another day."

The Girl had taken typewriting one time to help her with her papers at school. It was the one useful thing she knew. "Pops" had an idea. "My stenographer is sick and I wish you'd go to the office with me tomorrow and take some letters," he said.

She put in a long busy day. At five she was very tired. He handed her three dollars. "What I always pay a new girl," he explained. He kept her for a month, gave her three dollars every night and did not permit her to spend a cent she didn't earn.

She learned to darn runs, to do without records, and the old car got a rest. And she learned how hard it is to get a little bit of money "The most useful knowledge in the world!"

Her Own Way. A STORY OF A GIRL OF TODAY

"But I thought you wanted to come here," said Jerry in surprise.

"I did, but I've been properly punished for it. I never knew myself yet to try and feed my vanity and get away with it. I didn't expect that Tremaine woman was going to be here. I thought she would have the decency to stay away from such places now that her husband is out of town. She's primed for trouble. Look! She's sending a note over to Joan."

"At that moment her brother, who seemed to be the only carefree person in the whole party, spoke to me. 'I've decided not to go to Africa, darling. Why should I throw away all my happiness for the sake of some old dry scientific research?'"

"I did not turn my head."

"Judy, darling, I am talking to you."

"Oh, pardon me, I didn't know my name was 'Darling'."

"Stop your joking, you knew it was you knew you were my darling—turn and look at me—I have hardly had a glance of your eyes tonight; and beside, you are not eating anything, you who told me you were so hungry before we started."

"I turned toward him dutifully and so did not see Joan's face and so did not read the note which had been sent her by Mrs. Tremaine."

"Judy," she called across the table, "here is something which I think might interest you," and she lightly threw the paper across."

I glanced at Mamie. I knew that Mrs. Tremaine was trying to make trouble for her, and then I read the note.

"My dear Joan: I am quite sure that you do not know that one of the guests at your party is a young woman that I am going to make correspondent in my coming action for divorce from Buddy. I am writing this to you for I am also going to inform the management of her character immediately, and suggest that I, in deference to my position, cannot stay in this restaurant while she is in the room. This is to give you a chance to ask her to leave, as I know you do not want some one any ruder than I do. Affectionately and cordially yours, Sally Tremaine."

"What does that cat of a woman mean, Judy," asked Joan, as I slowly laid the note down upon the table.

"Is she writing about me?" questioned Mamie. "Please, Miss Meredith, let me leave your party; Jerry will take me home and I do not want to make any trouble."

"You'll do nothing of the kind, Mamie," I spoke. "We'll just go on as nothing had happened."

"But I must, I must, Judy," said Mamie. "She is determined to ruin me. I can't stay here. Please, Miss Meredith, excuse me; oh, I didn't think she could be so cruel!"

Joan looked thoroughly mystified, as she knew nothing about Mamie's affairs and couldn't understand what it was all about.

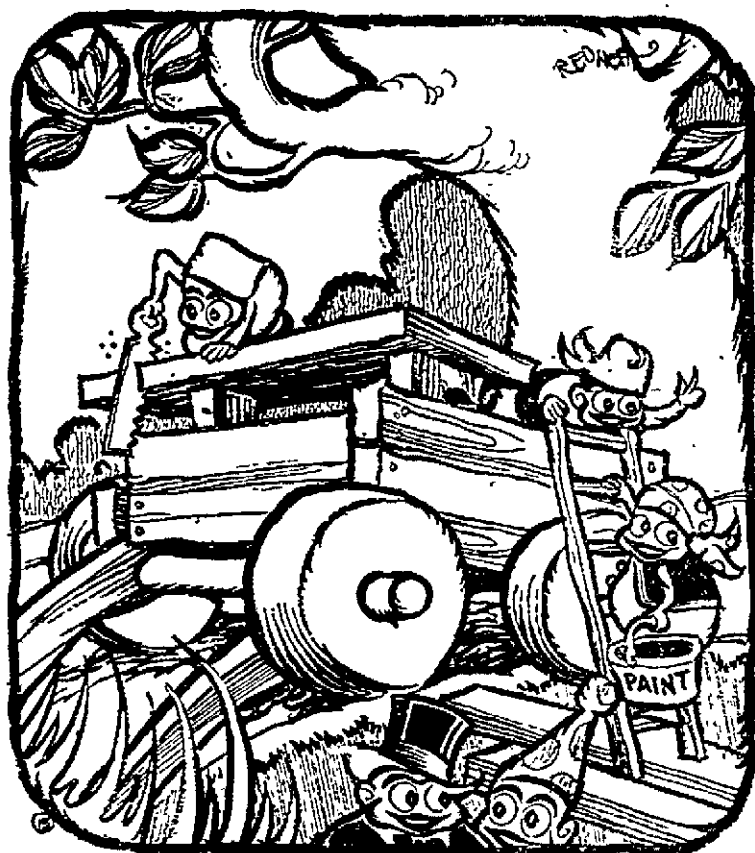

"Seeing that Mrs. Tremaine was still fussing about someone at our table, Mamie again partly arose from her chair, but Jerry thrust her back and then we three tried to go on with our dinner as though nothing had happened."

Sally Tremaine sat very still for a few moments—although her lips were moving very rapidly. Her eyes were fixed upon Joan, but our hostess God bless her, did not raise her eyes from her plate, except to speak to Jerry, who, having a knowledge of all the undercurrents that were flowing around the table, still played the same like the good sport he was.

Finally, Mrs. Tremaine became thoroughly convinced that none of us was

THE TINYMITES

By Hal Cochran

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The squirrel which the small trap caught, some clever tricks was shortly taught. The Tynymites were kind to him and he was glad to stay. Of course if they had scared him much, and were not gentle with their touch, he might have waited for his chance, and promptly run away.

But see, they gave him lots to eat, and gathered up the nutmeats sweet, and even let him sleep with them so he would not get cold. So Mister Squirrel thought it best that he join right in with the rest, and have a good old happy time, and do as he was told.

Said Carpy Tynymite, "What say we build a dandy cart today? If you will all run fetch the wood, I'll get my tools all out." So off the little fellows went, and heaps of busy time was spent, and soon they gathered up the wood that Carpy spoke about.

A short thick limb was cut in two.

Ab, Carpy knew just what to do. He saved off several pieces, and announced, "The wheels are done." And in the meantime, hammers drew, while others did what they could do. The building of a cart, they found, was really lots of fun.

The top was made real deep and wide so lots of them could get inside. As long as they were making it, they built the finest kind. Said Carpy, "It would be a slip, if when we started on our trip, the cart was small and some of us were forced to stay behind."

At last they all sat down and sighed. "The cart is finished," Carpy cried. A sigh of great relief was on the little fellows' faces. Said Scouty, "At the break of day, we'll all get up and drive away, and Mister Squirrel will take us to some strange and funny places."

(The cart trip starts in the next story.)

(Copyright, 1926, NEA Service, Inc.)

going to do anything about her note. She knew that she had to make good her threat. Spasmodically she arose from her seat and although the man started up with her, vainly trying to pull her back into her place, I, who was watching with growing discomfort, saw her walk out of the dining room.

At that I breathed easier, for I thought the danger of a scene in this crowded restaurant was over. But alas, I didn't quite know the venom of the woman's scorn.

Sally Tremaine had had just enough to drink to make her reckless of consequences.

In a few minutes I saw her come back to the door with that terrible manager of the restaurant who had been so unkind to me the first night I had arrived in Chicago.

They looked across at our table and he seeing me and apparently not seeing Jerry, grinned with triumph. I knew that now he thought he would have a chance to get even with me.

Quietly I bent toward Jerry, whose back was toward Mrs. Tremaine and the manager. "Jerry," I said, "perhaps you had better follow out to the office. Mrs. Tremaine is certainly going to make a fuss. You had better get there as soon as possible, for she has just been at the door pointing us out to your father's manager. I think he only saw me and of course he is determined to make it as hot for me as possible."

Excusing himself Jerry left the table quietly. He went out of a door close by. I looked up to see if Mrs. Tremaine was still there and found her face contorted with hatred. I was very glad that Mamie did not see her for I knew now that Sally Tremaine intended to make such a scene that Mamie would be forever disgraced.

Mamie had been much excited over the note that had been written to Joan and I did not want her to be further annoyed.

Apparently no one at the table except Mamie and I thought anything more of the incident. Joan was perfectly happy because she had seen Mrs. Tremaine go out of the door. She did not expect her to return.

Stealthily I looked on the other side toward John Meredith. He certainly did not know that anything out of the ordinary was happening. He was perfectly happy and did not know that there was anyone else in the room beside myself. He contrived to touch my hand, to touch my shoulder, and once he even pretended that a bobbed curl of my hair was in my eyes and stroked it back.

Ordinarily I would have resented it very much if, in a crowded dining room, a man had taken such a liberty; but with the man beside me it was very different. I will never know

A Happy Woman

A MAN dreams of wealth, success and power.

A woman dreams of a home of her own and babies to love.

Happy is the young woman whose dream is fulfilled. With good health, housework is not a burden. Her home echoes to the prattle of healthy children. She must not fail those tiny hands. Her husband is still her comrade and confidant, sharing her new responsibilities. She is content.

Happy, too, is the older woman who holds her children's children in her arms and lives to see a new generation dreaming dreams of its own.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

A young girl in Iowa was in such a weakened condition that she had to leave school. One day, after being in poor health for about two years, she picked up an advertising booklet and read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I began to take your medicine," she writes. "Now I am a housekeeper with six children and I have taken it before each was born. I cannot tell you all the good I have received from it. I read all of your little books I can get and I tell everyone I know what the Vegetable Compound does for me."

Will Sing In Recital Here

Miss Lucille Meusel, soprano, will give a concert at the Lawrence Memorial chapel Monday evening Nov. 22, under the auspices of the Appleton Womens club. It was announced Wednesday, Miss Meusel has many friends in Appleton as she is a graduate of Lawrence conservatory, and has appeared in recital and dramatic work both during her study here and later. A few weeks ago she sang at a musicale at the Riverview Country club given by Mrs. S. Eugene Shattuck of Neenah, and Mrs. Frank Oblison of Appleton.

For the past two years the soprano has studied with Herbert Witherspoon in Chicago, and has given recitals there. Her formal debut on the concert stage will be made in Chicago about Nov. 1.

The charm of her personality and the loveliness of her voice combined to give a future promise to the singer when she was at the conservatory in her two years with Witherspoon. Miss Meusel has developed this voice of promise and has brought the commendations of eminent critics and musicians of the country.

SURVIVAL OF THE FITTEST
A proprietary medicine like everything else that comes before the public has to prove its merit. It has to meet competition. The law of the Survival of the Fittest applies to this as to other things. The fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, after fifty years of success, is still one of the largest sellers, proves that it is a dependable, standard remedy and one in which women may have perfect confidence. adv.

KIMBERLY CLUB TO OPEN MEMBERSHIP DRIVE ON THURSDAY

M. H. Kettenhofen is General Chairman of Annual Campaign

Kimberly—The Kimberly club will open its annual membership campaign Thursday, Oct. 28, for three days, closing Saturday, Oct. 30. M. H. Kettenhofen is general chairman, and the old green and yellow safety divisions of the Kimberly-Clark mill again will take up the work with E. W. Young as chairman of the green division, and Clyde Smith chairman of the yellow division. Each division will have five teams and each team will consist of five members. There also will be a village team with Joseph Sandhofer as captain.

The names of all prospective club members have been listed on cards which will be divided equally among all teams at the opening of the campaign Thursday noon. Thursday, Friday and Saturday, all the team members will have luncheon at the clubhouse at 12 o'clock. The first day the cards will be given out, and the second and third days the chairmen will report the progress of their respective divisions. There also will be several speakers each noon.

Pamphlets on the subject have been issued, and distributed throughout the mill and village. These pamphlets point out the advantages of being a club member, and explain why village citizens should join. The booklet also lists the activities for the past year with 19,202 as the total. Basketball, volleyball and punchball games, physical training classes, moving picture shows, band concerts and plays, safety and club meetings, pool and card games, supervised parties and dances, citizenship and trade classes, and health clinics were some of the activities included in the list.

This will be the third membership campaign and as many improvements, including construction of a $13,000 modern fireproof stage, and the adding of $1,000 of modern and artistic stage scenery, and the purchase of a modern picture outfit, were made within the past two years. The building of a $3,500 balcony in the clubhouse gymnasium, which will allow for the presence of greater crowds at all activities, is one of the main features on the improvement program this year. The balcony is expected to be finished in time for the first basketball games of the season. Eight hundred and fifty members were enrolled in the club last year, and it is expected that the number will be greater this year, due to the increasing prominence and importance of the clubhouse.

TEACHERS DECIDE AGAINST USE OF STANDARD TESTS

Use Own Methods and Tests in Remedial English in Schools Here

English teachers at the junior and senior high schools will make their own tests for remedial English work, instead of adopting standardized tests, it was decided at the weekly meeting of principals with the superintendent of schools Tuesday morning. A. G. Oosterhouse, principal of the Roosevelt junior high school, was appointed a few weeks ago to study the Clapp test and to discuss the matter with the English committee of teachers from the schools.

A book of remedial work for correcting English, compiled by C. L. Matavers of Manitowish, has been used in the Appleton grade and junior high schools. The teachers believed that it would be best to make tests based on the work of this book and thus see what progress had been made in its study, rather than adopt standard tests based on some other text. In this way, remedial work may be done directly with the students, for the phases found weak may be specially emphasized in the future. The plan outlined was to give the tests as soon as they are prepared and then give the same tests near the end of the school year to measure progress.

An informal discussion of remedial arithmetic tests was made, but no definite steps will be taken until after the arithmetic of teachers headed by Frank Younger, principal of the McKinley junior high school, has made plans for the work.

STAGE AND SCREEN

GRAM CONTAINS HEADLINERS
At the Fischers Appleton Theatre, this Friday, Saturday and Sunday, in conjunction with the feature photograph showing of "You'd Be Surprised" starring Raymond Griffith, will be seen, a stage show surpassing anything presented for the bargain admission at the Appleton theatre. It is a stage show which is well known to all who have seen it. It is a stage show which is well known to all who have seen it.

The Reed Hopper Revue consisting of two adults and two children is a standard Keith Circuit Vaudeville act. The Cosmopolitan Four, three women and one man has just completed a tour of the Pacific coast.

Hilda Major, dancing violinist, has been playing the best Chicago theatres and should prove a sensation here.

Al and Al, two colored dancers, closed their extended engagement at the Granada theatre last Saturday, having been there since the opening of this house, Chicago's newest wonder theatre.

Other short film subjects will be presented on the same bill, including a special two reel subject done in technicolor based upon the famous painting "Mona Lisa". This subject will be an added feature for Friday and Saturday night. Those who say "The Phantom of the Forest" will need no further introduction to this wonder series.

THE STORY OF A DOG THAT "CAME RACE"
"Thunder" the Marvel Dog of the screen, will be the headline star at the New Bijou, three days, starting Thursday with "The Phantom of the Forest" is shown.

As the title would indicate the action of the story takes place in a forest but such a forest—the magnificent redwoods of old California—forms the scenic background for the story. The plot revolves around two scheming scoundrels who discover that a certain piece of timber and also contains oil. The land is owned by a girl and the two men, knowing she is in need of funds, try to secure an option on the property. They are foiled through the actions of a mysterious dog who roams wild and who is known as "The Phantom of the Forest." The girl next secures an ally in the person of a young man who is camping in the forest in his vacation. He is the son of a wealthy oil man and he soon discovers the true value of the land. The schemers next plot to injure the timber value to make the girl glad to sell. One of them sets fire to the forest but in doing endangers the life of his partner's infant child. The child is saved by the "Phantom" and in gratitude the man confesses the plot.

YOUTH, FEMINE AND MALE, FEATURES FILM
Flapper, the female of the species, and flackjack, the male counterpart, have their innings galore in the Henry King production of "Stella Dallas," showing at the Elite Theatre 2 more days.

Boyish bobs, shingle cuts, fan fare trims, in fact all manner of modish, up-to-date hair cuts, are in evidence with the girls. Balloon trousers, flannels, blue serge coats, uketes and canoe paddles are the fashion hints followed by the boys.

Youth and beauty in and about an exclusive summer resort have full play in this Samuel Goldwyn production which is a romantic drama, adapted by Frances Marion from Olive Higgins Prouty's celebrated novel.

Of the two more important young folk in the picture, special note is given to Lois Moran, the wistful unmoderated girl, who plays the part of Laurel, daughter of "Stella." Lois Moran is not a flapper. She has been called a "frigid canoe."

Young Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., in his romantic moment, exemplifies the semi-awkward, bashful youth with a care-free flare to his actions.

These young moderns indulge in all the outdoor sports known to American youth: horseback riding, swimming, canoeing, tennis, picnicing, fishing—all give added verve and dash and a touch of color to the drama, and lend contrast to the heart appeal of the main theme.

Besides Lois Moran and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., the cast in "Stella Dallas" includes Jonhall Colman, Belle Tennant, Alice Joyce and Jean Herschell.

"UNCLE BOB"

Uncle Bob Engaged by Theatre to Tell of His Experiences

Walter Wilson or "Uncle Bob," well-known bed-time story teller and child entertainer of the radio will appear at Fischer's Appleton theatre at 4:30 Monday afternoon and at 7:15 and 9:15 in the evening. The afternoon performance has been arranged especially for the children and will bring to the person the funny old man who has interested and entertained as well as admonished them at 6 o'clock each evening over KTV, the Westinghouse station, Chicago.

This act will include the playing and singing of some of his own songs, and telling humorous stories of his experience in radio. "Uncle Bob" was the originator of the idea of instilling into the child's mind through constant admonition the necessity of staying on the sidewalk and not running into the street. One day while walking near his home in Chicago, Mr. Wilson saw a four year old child struck down and killed by an automobile. The scene remained in his mind and suddenly while working on his program, the thought occurred to him that perhaps he could do something in his work on the air to help the children and prevent accidents.

"Uncle Bob" will appear on the program with Marie Prevost and Harrison Ford in the picture, "Almost a Lady" and with the mind reader, Marajah the Mystic.

MAIL SUPERINTENDENT INSPECTS CITY ROUTES

John B. Letter, superintendent of the mails at the Appleton Post office has begun his semi-annual inspection of the city delivery routes. Mr. Letter spends one day with each carrier, inspecting the mail receptacles and making a general survey of the route. Mr. Letter will complete the work in 10 days and will then send a report to the federal department at Washington.

ANOTHER STOLEN CAR RECOVERED BY POLICE

A Ford coupe belonging to Edward Schneider reported Tuesday as stolen from in front of the Lincoln school building was found by Motorcycle Patrolman Alfred Dunn near the Fox River Paper mill. It was reported at police headquarters Wednesday. Police are registering a 100 per cent recovery on cars stolen in Appleton, the records show.

Vital Kinship Between U. S. Navy And Merchant Marine Pictured By Wilbur

CURTIS D. WILBUR
EDITOR'S NOTE: There is enlightening discussion of American navy and merchant marine problems and their relation to national welfare in a series of four articles written for Appleton Post-Crescent by outstanding authorities. Here is the first, by Navy Secretary Wilbur. The articles are particularly timely because Oct. 27 is America's annual "Navy Day."

BY CURTIS D. WILBUR
Secretary of the Navy
When Napoleon said, "An army marches on its stomach," he epitomized a truth of board application. An army is limited in its operations by the extent of its commissary and this fact is equally true of a navy. The supply facilities required by the United States navy is a problem of colossal proportions—fuel, ammunition, food and replacements ranging all the way from radio tubes to airplanes for 18 battleships and several hundred lesser warcraft.

Take one item—food. To feed a battleship's crew one month requires 25 healthy head of cattle, 30 sheep, 25 calves and the hams of 200 hogs. Other items include 68,000 pounds of fresh vegetables, 29,000 pounds of fruit, 24,000 pounds of flour and $7,000 dozen eggs.

TROUBLE OF CARRIERS

In time of peace the matter of supplying our warships from home ports is a large but relatively simple matter. In time of emergency, however, the navy may be called far from our coast. In the Spanish-American War, for example, our fleet, under Dewey, was drawn to Manila, while the Spanish fleet proceeded to Santiago. Cuba, both forces were separated by several thousand miles from their home ports.

The ordinary slow-moving cargo carrier will not average much better than one round trip from our west coast to Manila in 60 days.

Among other factors, distance determines the number of supply ships essential to fuel and provision the fleet. It follows that at least three Essays for the Post-Crescent news story contest submitted for this week's prizes were entered at Appleton high school Tuesday afternoon, but students at the school who wish to enter the contest may write essays for the week's competition ending Tuesday, Nov. 2.

Each week the Post-Crescent will pay $2.50 to the best essay of 250 words or less written on the news story appearing in the paper that has the greatest local interest. The story may be published in the Post-Crescent from Monday through Saturday, and the essay will be due on the following Tuesday. The winning essay and the one securing honorable mention will be printed in the Thursday issue of the paper.

CALL FIREMEN AS HOUSE FILLS UP WITH SMOKE
The first call for fire apparatus received in eight days was a wild goose chase for when the department arrived at the home of Leo C. Rusey, 200 W. Prospect-ave, it found that a smoking furnace had caused the commotion. No damage was reported. The house, however, firemen said, was filled with smoke.

Speeder Pays Fine
J. P. Clements, proprietor of a tea and office store, charged with speeding on E. College-ave by Motorcycle Patrolman Alfred Dunn was fined $10 and costs of $3.20 when arraigned before Municipal Judge Theodore Berg on Tuesday afternoon.

times as many cargo vessels would be required to supply a fleet based on Manila bay as one operating from Pearl harbor, Hawaii.

In time of peace our navy maintains only a modest number of vessels for transports, supply ships, tankers and colliers. For the tremendous tonnage that might be required in case of war, the navy and the national defense must depend on an American merchant marine.

EMERGENCY RESERVE

Another point to be kept in mind is the possibility of transporting troops overseas. It is a consideration which hardly seems possible at this time. But neither did it at the beginning of 1914. It required 372 merchant vessels of 3,766,418 gross tons to carry 2,086,000 of our troops to France.

In time of peace merchant ships belong in the carrying trade, earning a return. Nor is the advantage which would come from the ability to deliver the products of our farms, forests and factories to foreign markets the sole remaining consideration. The least appreciated reason for an American merchant marine is to insure the many imports so necessary and important to our daily lives.

SELF-DEPENDENCE BEST

It has been estimated by the chairman of the committee on commerce, United States Senator, that during the World War the lack of a merchant marine cost the United States something like seven and a half billions of dollars. It is a good business judgment, therefore, in addition to sound national defense, to develop a merchant marine that will both support our navy in defending the nation and provide a reliable system of sea transportation for exports and imports.

The maintenance of our present standard of living largely depends on our ability to market abroad our surplus products and to import essentials for farms, factories and industries. It is wise not to depend on others for this service. In time of war, whether this country is engaged or not, it is of the utmost importance that there be an adequate merchant marine under the United States flag.

STEINBERG OFFERS CUP FOR REALTORS

An achievement cup, donated by D. P. Steinberg, Appleton, is to be awarded at the annual convention of the Wisconsin association of Real Estate Brokers, which is being held at Racine from Tuesday to Thursday, to the real estate board reporting the greatest achievements in behalf of its local community. A similar cup is awarded at each annual convention. Mr. Steinberg is attending the convention and P. A. Kornely is planning to attend.

REALTY TRANSFERS
The following real estate transfer was filed with Albert K. Koch, register of deeds, Tuesday: Mrs. Fredericka Ratzman to Zion Evangelical congregation, lot in Sixth ward, Appleton.

Marriage Licenses
Clement Sokowski has filed application for a license to marry Margaret McGillan, both of Appleton, according to records at the office of County Clerk John E. Hantschel. Another such application was applied for by Louis Siedler to wed Elsie Pomeroy, also both of Appleton.

Letters enclosing the regular form and information that expense accounts must be filed by all county political candidates were mailed out by County Clerk John E. Hantschel on Tuesday for return to his office Saturday. The law stipulates that one such account must be made public by each candidate the Saturday preceding the general election and another the Saturday following. The accounts must show that they were mailed before the close of the business day in each instance.

SEEK $5,000,000 FOR STATE NORMAL SCHOOLS

Madison—(AP)—Eleven state normal school regents will meet here November 1 and 2 to prepare the biennial budget for the nine normal schools of the state, for the period beginning July 1, 1927 and ending July 1, 1928.

Preliminary estimates and charts have been prepared by William Kittle, secretary of the board, which will be passed on by the regents. The completed budget which will be presented to the coming legislature for approval will probably aggregate more than $5,000,000. The last biennial budget totaled $1,770,624 Mr. Kittle said, and it is estimated from preliminary statements and recommendations of the heads of the various schools that the figure will be equalled if not passed for the coming biennium.

CANNOT SEPARATE ART AND LIFE, SPEAKER SAYS

The art of making a living, of making a life and of living with others are the necessary parts of The Art of Living, William Rainey Bennett, Chicago, said in a talk before the Lawrence college students at chapel services Monday. Mr. Bennett was brought to Appleton to speak at the forum meeting of the Rotary, Lions and Kiwanis clubs Monday noon at the Conway hotel.

"All useful work is divine, and art is but useful work done in a fine way. We have tried to make art and life separate things, but they are so closely connected they are practically one," he stated. The value of work is not made by its nature, as the mental is just as necessary as administrative work, the speaker continued.

UNDEFEATED LAKE FOREST SQUAD HAS UNCROSSED GOAL

Squad Which Meets Blues Here Saturday Held Star Michigan State Men, 0-0

Reports from Lake Forest Rate Gold Coasters With Best College Teams

Evidence that Lawrence college grid-der will have one of the toughest battles of the season on their hands when they clash with Lake Forest college of Illinois here Saturday in a Wisconsin-Illinois conference game, is contained in records of the Foresters for this season. The Gold Coasters will come to Appleton an undefeated team, though they have clashed with four of the best college teams in the west since the season opened. Add to that fact that the goal line of the northern Illinois eleven is yet uncrossed.

TIED MICHIGAN STATE
Hillsdale college was held to a 0-0 tie in the opener and then the Chicago V. M. C. A. college was defeated, 6-0. North Central college, formerly Northwestern of Naperville, was whipped 22-0. The team showed a great improvement in each game and in the big game of the year held the strong Michigan State crew to a 0-0 tie at Lansing Stadium last week.

This year Michigan State scored on Coach Fielding Vost's Michigan squad for the first time in three years, holding the 1925 Big Ten champs to a close score. Michigan is ranked with Ohio State as being a leading contender for the 1926 conference title. Beside this feat against Michigan, the State crew defeated one of the strong teams of the East in an inter-sectional game. Therefore Lake Forest's 0-0 tie with State ranks the Gold Coasters as among the country's best college teams. Carroll also will vouch for this for the Wausharaans won a tough game from Lake Forest in the last half last year, 6-0. Later Carroll tripped Lawrence and took the state title.

In the backfield, Captain Flancher runs the team. The Illinois captain is known for his field generalship. At halfbacks, McCull, Singer and Marun will see action with Big Holmes at fullback.

McLain is a husky youngster, well over six feet in height, 200 pounds in weight, in whose features one can see the struggle of the Indian and Irish for first expression.

But just between his skull and his headgear is a thick crop of auburn hair which cries, without hesitation, "Erin go bragh!"

McLain has plunged, crashed and side-stepped for a total score of 164 points in his five games this season.

RICKARD DENIES SIGNING DEMPSEY
Tex Expresses Doubt That Jack Will Return to Ring; Fights Commission

New York—(AP)—Denying that he had signed Jack Dempsey to a contract for a bout with Gene Tunney, Tex Rickard Wednesday expressed doubt that Dempsey would don the gloves again.

"He's got so much money that the game may not have the old appeal to him," the promoter said. "He may not like the idea of training hard. Unless he is enthusiastic it would do him more harm than good to return to the ring. Dempsey should go through one or two trials before tackling another title bout for the double purpose of assuring himself and the public as to his fighting form and condition."

Trouble again looms between Tex Rickard and the New York boxing commission. The commission insists that Tunney must defend his title every six months like any other title holder. Tex says Cene will fight again next September.

MEET TO ORGANIZE CITY BOWLING LEAGUE

Organization of the Appleton City Bowling League for 1925-26 will be started at a meeting of representatives of three local alleys at the Eagle alleys at 7:30 Wednesday evening, Nov. 3. Six teams, two from Arcade, Elks and Eagle alleys will form the league. All men desiring to bowl in the league have been requested to leave their names to any of the three alleys.

It is planned to start the bowling on Sunday, Nov. 7. The league will bowl

Pass Gets Most Yardage With Not So Much Effort

A great asset of the pass is found, I think, in the advantage it has to gain the maximum yardage with the least possible effort.

A single pass successfully completed usually results in an advance of from 10 to 30 yards. An average rush gains not more than four or five yards.

Far less energy is consumed in executing a pass than a rush. There is no fierce line charging and the backs have comparatively easy assignments.

To make a consistent march of 50 or 60 yards by line plunges and off-tackle plays says the vitality of the team and is seldom resultant in a score. However, if this march is interspersed with an aerial attack by this strategy the running plays are aided and the advance is made with less output.

Another important value of the pass is its demoralizing effect upon the defending team. I have played in the line and have realized the feeling of helplessness when the pass soars swiftly overhead. No physical effort or power of will can check

IRISH-INJUN GOOD GRIDDER

MAYES McLAIN

Lawrence, Kan.—A red thatch and grid glory seem to go hand in hand. Shining examples of this theory are "Red" Roberts and "Red" Weaver, who flashed into fame when the Praying Colonels of Centre College were victorious a few years ago over dear Old Harvard.

Then "Red" Grange burst into a blaze of glory, shooting across the football sky like a meteor, shining with a lustre that time has not yet dimmed.

Now comes another clamoring for his niche in football's hall of fame. He is Mayes McLain, Irish-Indian of Haskell Indian school.

McLain is a husky youngster, well over six feet in height, 200 pounds in weight, in whose features one can see the struggle of the Indian and Irish for first expression.

But just between his skull and his headgear is a thick crop of auburn hair which cries, without hesitation, "Erin go bragh!"

McLain has plunged, crashed and side-stepped for a total score of 164 points in his five games this season.

Ripon at Beloit

A triple tie for the leadership of the new Wisconsin-Illinois inter-collegiate conference will exist after Saturday when Lawrence and Lake Forest clash at Beloit while the other three squads play non-conference games. Carroll hits Iowa, while Ripon clashes with Beloit in a game which will bear on the "cellar title" of the Midwest conference as well as on the state college title. Ripon is a slight favorite over Beloit due to Midwest games played this year where the Reds showed to better advantage, especially against Cornell.

The winner of the Lawrence-Lake Forest game will forge into a triple tie with Ripon which has won one game and tied another and Carroll which has a single victory.

Sunday afternoons or during the week if arrangements can be made. Last year, its first, the league used Sunday afternoons with good success.

The ball in its flight. It is on its way, going perhaps for a touchdown. The third essential and greatest value of the pass is its primary importance in the strategy of the game.

By its constant threat, the quarterback is enabled to hold the secondary defense from approaching too close to the scrimmage line. It is used to make the running attack too. Advantage should be taken of this use as an aid to the offense.

Forward passing always should be perfected to such a degree that it can be attempted in any position on the field. They are used by some teams only when the down and distance to be gained indicate their advisability. In other words, it is often used as a play of the last resort, that is when it is third down, nine or thirteen yards to go and there is no other alternative.

The defense also recognizes this situation and prepares for it. However, if always held as a constant threat the crafty field general may maneuver the defense according to his own will.

HOLY NAME LEAGUE OPENS PIN SEASON WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Four Teams Battle Two Nights a Week on St. Joseph Church Alleys

Organization of the Holy Name Bowling League, which will start its season Wednesday night, was completed this week. The league, composed of members of the St. Joseph church Holy Name society, will roll each Wednesday and Friday night on the St. Joseph alleys. CITY HAS TROUBLE IN GETTING GRAVEL FOR USE ON ROADS

Try to Find Pits Near City to Reduce Cost of Transportation

The street department is having unusual difficulty this fall in grading and repairing streets because of inability to obtain cinders in sufficient quantities and also because there are no gravel pits in operation near Appleton where gravel can be obtained economically. According to R. F. Hackworth, street commissioner, efforts are being made to secure gravel from a point near the city, so that the cost of transportation is not prohibitive.

A carload of gravel was received this week from Elkhardt and is being hauled to those streets where grading has been finished. Although gravel costs about twice as much as cinders, it is much better on roads, according to Mr. Hackworth. Cinders deteriorate in a short time while gravel has a long life and is more economical in the long run, he said.

The improvement program for next year, includes the paving of Wisconsin-ave and opening of new streets in several sections of the city. These streets probably will be of gravel as cinders are becoming harder to obtain.

STREET MEN HAVE PLENTY OF LABOR

Crew Cleans Up Leaves as Rain Prevents Work on Dirt Streets

Despite wet weather of the past week or so the street department has not been wanting for work for its employees, Robert Hackworth, street commissioner, reports. Although the rains made the dirt roads too heavy to work, several heavy frosts started the leaves to fall, resulting in the annual leaf cleanup by the department crew.

Incidentally, this was one time when the rain was welcome to the city. Dry, windy weather would have resulted in a scattering of the leaves which would make it doubly difficult for the street crew to collect them. Soaked by rain, leaves can be shoveled like snow onto wagons, and of course more can be carried in a load.

The leaves must be taken off the streets to prevent the clogging of sewers and catch basins. Were they allowed to remain on the thoroughfares, it would not be many days before practically every catch basin in the city would be so clogged it would not function, according to Mr. Hackworth.

Grading of Circle-st was completed some time ago but some work still remains to be done on Commercial-st. Had it not been for rain, the latter street also would have been completely graded this week. The street crew will attempt to finish its work there this week if no more rain is encountered. Both streets will be graveled as soon as the city is able to secure some.

MOVE HOUSE FROM STREET

Circle-st, between N. Meade and N. Drew-sts, has been graded and will be finished with gravel. The city council had ordered a sidewalk along this street but its construction will be delayed until 1927. A cinder path will be laid for temporary use. N. Union-st is to be extended from E. Wisconsin-ave one block to E. Brewster-st. The city has purchased and will move a house that stood in the path of the new street.

Street employees are engaged in removing dried leaves from the street to keep them from blocking the sewers. This work probably will be finished in three or four days and the men then will work on the unfinished streets. Some of the men are at the city barns repairing snow plows, shovels and other snow removing equipment.

COUNTERFEIT $20. NOTE IS ANNOUNCED

Announcement has been received at the post office of the circulation of a counterfeit $20 national bank note drawn on the First National bank of Cincinnati, Ohio. It is of the series of 1902 bearing the check letter E; treasury number T970180B; bank number 46411; plate number 254.

The note bears the name of J. W. Lyon, register of the Treasury and Ellis H. Roberts, treasurer of the United States with a picture of Hugh McCulloch. The imitation bills are crude and should be easily detected.

5 Cabinet Members Fly, But Cal Prefers Ground

BY CHARLES P. STEWART

Washington — Aviation is not for the president.

That is, not for the present president. If the late Col. Roosevelt were in the White House now it is safe to say that White House airplanes would be as much an established institution as White House automobiles. Col. Roosevelt, II, as everybody knows, is a chronic flyer.

President Coolidge, however, is cautious. There will be no planes in the White House garage as long as he is chief executive.

Some future president may take chances in the heavens, but not this one. Secret service men are no protection in a plane crash.

Cabinet members, seemingly, are not so fragile. At all events, several of them are experienced aerial travelers. Postmaster General New flies almost every day. He takes a plane as indifferently as the average man takes a taxi.

Secretary of War Davis is frequent.

ASSESSOR RECORDING ALL PROPERTY DEALS

Changes of street names, property transfers and formation of new plats are being recorded in the city's books by George Peotter, city assessor. A record of all property transactions must be kept by the assessor to prevent unnecessary delay and difficulty when the next assessment is begun.

AT NEW LOWER PRICES, the Chrysler "60" is recognized as a value further removed than ever from any other light six in the industry.

Nothing so surely emphasizes the unique value that Chrysler "60" offers as the attempt to compare Chrysler "60" performance with that of the ordinary type of six.

So clearly defined and obvious is the difference in Chrysler "60" riding qualities—in speed and smoothness of operation, in roadability and riding comfort, in pliability of power, in response to accelerator and steering wheel—the least experienced driver cannot fail to class the "60" as immeasurably ahead of all other cars anywhere near it in price.

The difference is in creative engineering—in fine-measurement-manufacturing—in short, in Chrysler Standardized Quality. Walter P. Chrysler and his engineers and

Washington, D. C.—A total of 555 immigrants admitted to the United States in July and August, the last month for which figures are available, announced their intention of making their residence in Wisconsin, the Bureau of Immigration has announced. The total number of immigrants coming to the United States in these two months was 51,569. New York got the largest number of residents from them 11,522 and Texas 7,500.

The incoming movement to the United States in August, of 102,436 persons, including 52,683 American citizens and 49,753 aliens, was the largest for any one month since September, 1925, when 68,500 citizens returned and 49,802 aliens were admitted to this country—a total of 118,302. Of the aliens entering the country in August last, 29,296 were immigrants and 20,467 nonimmigrants. The alien departures this month included 7,378 emigrants and 15,410 nonemigrants, making a total of 22,786. Thus the net increase in our alien population was 26,967 for the month.

While Ellis Island, during the period of unrestricted immigration, has always been considered the nation's main gateway, handling over 72 per cent of the national immigration, less than one-half, or 48 per cent, of the immigrants for the month of August, 1926, were recorded, as coming that way. The port of New York is credited with 14,133, out of a total at all ports of 29,286. Points along the Canadian and Mexican borders are now important places of entry. Over 7,656 immigrant aliens were admitted and from Mexico 5,785—a total of 13,441. The bulk of the alien departures, however, still leaves through our largest seaport, 5,496, or 75 per cent of the total immigrants for August, having left the United States via the port of New York.

SAINT AND SINNER

By Anne Austin

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE
CHERRY LANE, 18, beautiful, and a conscienceless flirt, is playing the love game with a dozen admirers, including BOB HATHAWAY, CHRIS WILEY, a man of bad reputation, and ALBERT ETTLESON, a married traveling salesman.

FAITH LANE, 20, is in love with Hathaway. GEORGE FRUIT, rich amateur artist, proposes to Faith and is rejected. When Faith returns home that evening, she finds that Cherry has most of her clothes have disappeared, and that Mr. Albert Ettleson has come to warn the Lane family that Cherry and her husband are eloping to New York.

Mrs. Lane is seized with a heart attack, and Bob and Faith break all speed laws in getting to Darrow, in an effort to save Cherry from her own folly. They find that Cherry and Ettleson have boarded the limited for New York. A porter leads them to Ettleson's stateroom, which they find locked. At Cherry's scream for help, Bob Hathaway forced Ettleson to open the door, and is confronted with a drawn automatic.

Faith takes the gun from Ettleson, who turns upon Cherry with a torrent of abuse. On the drive back to the town where the Lanes live, Bob shows clearly that he despises Cherry, but when Faith later asks him what is to be done with Cherry, so that she will not disgrace the family and kill her mother, Hathaway offers the sacrifice of himself in marriage.

Although she loves him, Faith realizes that he can save Cherry from herself.

JOY, 9, interrupts with the news that Mr. Lane is whipping Cherry in the wood shed, and Bob and Faith again go to her rescue. Bob tells Mr. Lane he is willing to marry the girl, but Cherry rudely and violently rejects his offer, saying she has other plans. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXI
In the pause that followed Cherry's shocking, unbelievably rude refusal of Bob Hathaway's offer of marriage, Faith resolutely kept her eyes from his, tried with all the force of her will, to suppress the rising tide of exultation and relief that threatened to flood her body.

Cherry didn't want him! Cherry had hurled him back on himself with venom and scorn and made his self-sacrifice seem silly and tawdry. Oh, Bob! Poor Bob! Were his eyes hot with anger now, or were they dazzled blue with that incredible relief that had glorified Jim Lane for a brief minute, only to pass on, leaving him gray-checked and old and tired? Every nerve in Faith's body cleared for her to look into Bob Hathaway's face and read the answer there, but she did not dare.

Joy's nervous, high giggle broke the spell of silence. "What are you doing up this time of night, Joy?" Jim Lane demanded, moving toward the door slowly, as if he, then, slipped, and were not strong enough for the burden of his troubles and of his shame. "I guess we'd better get to bed, all of us. I hope you'll not take what my daughter said seriously, Mr. Hathaway. She—I don't think she's quite herself tonight. Good night, sir, and I wish none of this bad business had happened. I—I don't know how to apologize for Cherry—and myself."

"That's all right, Mr. Lane," Bob Hathaway offered his hand with boyish awkwardness. "I don't blame you—all of us lose our heads sometimes. Good night, everybody."

Faith watched him swing off into the darkness, her pulses pounding. At the very last she had not been able to resist looking at him. And his good night had been aimed at her—at her alone!

When they had returned to the house, Faith begged her father to go to bed, but he shook his head stubbornly.

"No, I'll set up with her. It's nearly one o'clock and you've got to get up early in the morning, to get for off to school, and Cherry and Junior off to work. I'll take a half day off tomorrow, and get enough sleep to do me. Think she's looking better?" he asked anxiously, his mild, sad eyes fixed on the sleeping face of his wife.

"Much better," Faith lied, with a sob in her throat. "She'll be all right tomorrow. Dad; just you wait and see."

"I—I wish you'd tell Cherry I'm sorry," he faltered in a husky whisper. "Something come over me all of a sudden—I never thought I'd live to see the day that I'd raise my hand against a girl child of mine."

"I'll tell her. Dad. She deserved to be punished, but she's too old for—for a whipping. Don't worry, Daddy." Because her pity for him was almost more than she could bear, she stooped and kissed him on his fluttering, wrinkled eyelids—a caress she had never given anyone before in her life.

She found Cherry's door locked. "It's just me, honey," she called softly. "Go 'way!" Cherry's strangled voice answered petulantly. "Just for a minute, honey," Faith pleaded. "I've got a message for you."

After a moment the lock snapped, and Cherry stood before her, gnawing at her lips and dashing angrily at the tears that were streaming down her cheeks, one of them still reddened with the imprint of her father's hand. She looked amazingly little and young in her clinging silk crepe chemise, her round knees as white as milk above the rolled tops of her silk stockings.

Faith stooped, swung the tiny body up into her arms as easily as if Cherry had been a child, and carried her to her bed.

"You lie there now, honey, and I'll do your face for you, and brush your hair."

When she came back to the bed from the dresser, carrying hair brush a bit of soft old towel, and jars of cold cream and "skin food," she found that Cherry had rolled upon her side, her knees doubled up to her chin, her tiny, rose-tipped fingers pressing into her eyes.

"You mustn't cry like that, honey. You'll be sick," Faith soothed her. "Dad asked me to tell you that he was sorry and ashamed."

"I deserved it," Cherry sobbed more violently. "He ought to have covered my body with welts! He should have whipped me till the blood ran! Oh, Faith, I'm no good! I wish I could die!"

"No, you don't," Faith said more severely, but her hands were very gentle as she parted the riotous copper-and-gold curls and began to brush them with soothing monotony.

"You saved me from that terrible man, Faith. You and Bob. Why do you bother about me? Why don't you give me enough rope to hang myself? I'm no good. Faith! Bob knows it—Bob!" Fresh sobs choked off the words.

"Why did you humiliate him like that, Cherry? He doesn't deserve to be treated like that."

"Think I'm going to marry him when he doesn't love me any more?" Cherry flared, her topaz eyes blazing under the aureole of her brushed-out curls.

"He was just hurt and angry," Faith read something in those blazing eyes that made her feel that her heart, so newly healed, so newly flooded with hope, was breaking again. "Any man would have been."

Cherry. You can't blame him!" How could she plead with Cherry for him like that, she asked herself in a fury of pain. Cherry had refused him—had insulted him. Why couldn't she let well enough alone—take the gift that the gods were so strangely offering her? But oh, the stark pain in those blazing golden eyes, in that twisted quivering mouth!

"I'm not blaming him!" Cherry cried, seizing Faith's hand that yielded the brush upon her curls. "Please go away, Faith! Please let me alone! Oh, I wish I could die!"

"Because—because you love Bob?" Faith's white lips asked the words, but she knew the answer. "I'm crazy about him," Cherry rolled out upon her side again, covering her face with her hands. "I didn't know it, until tonight coming home in the car. When I saw he didn't love me, despised me, and when I saw you and him together—"

"What do you mean, Cherry?" Faith knelt by the bed and took the shaking little body into her arms. "He's in love with you," Cherry said.

"He's in love with you," Cherry said.

"He's in love with you," Cherry said.

"He's in love with you," Cherry said.

"He's in love with you," Cherry said.

"He's in love with you," Cherry said.

"He's in love with you," Cherry said.

"He's in love with you," Cherry said.

"He's in love with you," Cherry said.

"He's in love with you," Cherry said.

"He's in love with you," Cherry said.

"He's in love with you," Cherry said.

"He's in love with you," Cherry said.

"He's in love with you," Cherry said.

put her arms around Faith's neck and buried her face against Faith's breast. "You don't think you and Bob Hathaway are the only ones in the world that can be noble, do you? I had to make him think I despised him, so he wouldn't go on sacrificing himself for me. I couldn't take him, Faith after you were so good to me. I'm no good, Faith, but I love you a lot."

Once again that day Faith told a lie for Cherry's sake, told it gallantly, with a gay voice, rippled with laughter, that tore at her throatlike sobs: "You darling little goose! I'm not in love with Bob Hathaway! I'm—I'm thinking of marrying George Pruitt. He asked me today."

"Really, Faith! Honestly?" Cherry's whole face was suddenly radiant, her eyes like yellow diamonds, as she stared up into her sister's face.

"Yes, really," Faith nodded, but she could not meet the glad brilliance of Cherry's eyes. "But don't say a word about it to mother and dad. I couldn't leave mother while she's so sick—we may be engaged for years, you know—if I take him. Don't you think he's nice?"

The radiance died slowly out of Cherry's face. "You don't sound right," she said slowly. "Of Faith don't go on forever being a self-sacrificing angel! You're lying to me. You're crazy about Bob Hathaway, and so am I, and he loves you and he doesn't love me—any more. I could get him back but I won't try. I want you to have him, even if it breaks my heart."

"Don't be a little idiot!" Faith's voice was husky with tears. "We're fine pals—swapping Bob Hathaway back and forth between us, as if he had nothing to say in the matter. Sit still on my knees, now, and let me cold cream your face—your adorable, naughty little face that will get you into trouble as long as you live!"

When Cherry was snuggled drowsily into her pillows, Faith tiptoed to her own room, utterly weary, her heart so tired with emotion that it felt incapable of hope or sorrow or pity or love.

She stood for a moment, before beginning to undress, at the open window, through which fluttered the first chill breeze of autumn. As she stood inert, too tired to move, she was suddenly aware of a negro's voice, lifted to the stars in happy, carefree song: "When de roll is called up yondah Ah'll be there!"

Faith smiled and leaned out of the window to watch the big body of the singer lurching down the street. "And de saints and de sinners shall be pashed right and left—"

"Saints! Sinners!" Faith whispered the words. How could a just God ever divide His children into "sinners" and "saints"? There was a sinner in all of us, she reflected, and a saint. Cherry had shown the saint—a shy, clipped-winged little saint—that hid her sinful, selfish young heart, when she had spat those venomous words at Bob Hathaway—for his sake and for Faith that an envioushearted, evil-tempered little dwarf of a sinner dwelt in the depths of her own being, although the family, if they had been called upon to judge, would have called her their "saint."

"Sinner and saint!" Faith's tired mouth stirred in a faint smile. "There ain't no such animals—separately. We're all both." Since there was no one to overhear her, it didn't matter that her meaning was not clear.

The next morning with Joy starting to school, Junior getting away early on a tour of the country with his "traveling store" of automobile necessities, Mrs. Lane requiring almost constant attention, Aunt Hattie visiting to help out, and the house to be kept quiet so that Mr. Lane could snatch a much-needed nap after his all-night vigil, Faith had little time to brood.

At two o'clock in the afternoon Bob Hathaway telephoned, asking her if she could take time off that evening from nursing her mother to drive with him for an hour. His voice was pleading, even tender.

"I'm sorry, Bob, but I'm afraid I can't get away." She forced her voice to be casually regretful. "Call me up again soon."

The angry snap of his receiver upon its hook was, strangely enough, as sweet to her ears as a bar of exquisite music.

She was dishing supper that evening when Cherry strolled into the kitchen with elaborate nonchalance, her left hand ostentatiously supporting her chin, so that a huge diamond on her slim third finger winked and twinkled like an imprisoned star.

"Cherry! Where on earth—" Faith set down a dish of Irish stew so hard that the steaming stuff stopped over, "Old Mr. Cluny wields a wicked checkbook, doesn't he?" She laughed a harsh, metallic little laugh. "What's that moss-covered old saying—'I'd rather be an old man's darling than a young man's slave'?"

STILL THE OFFERS COME
The Editor Has a Chance to Break Into High Society

Dear Editor:
It seems to me We Editors should help each other. So that is why I'm writing you To offer my assistance, brother. I supervise the social page. Appearing daily in this paper, I chronicle the weddings, teas, Receptions and each social caper.

I know there are a lot of girls Who hate the social life so dizzy, And a litle ask about a man Is this one simple thing, "Where is he?"

A girl like that who has grown sick Of social ways and finds them hollow Would make a wondrous wife for you; In logic, that would seem to follow.

At any rate, why not let me Dig up a prospect on that order? The least, in fairness, you should do Would be to look a wee bit toward her.

And then remember this, Old Top, If in your etiquette you're slipping, You'd have a wife who knows the game!

Yours hopefully,
—Miss Edna Hipping.

By Geraldine B. Holten

Burglar—Not a word, or I'll fire! I'm hard, I am. Where's yer jewelry, loidy?

Old Maid—My, what a handsome young man!

Burglar—Will yuh can that chatter, or will I have ter use force?

Old Maid—Force! Oh, how thrilling! My, but isn't this romantic? Do you know that I simply dote on burglars?

Burglar—Whew! I wish I was outa dis! Loidy, have yer got any rings?

Old Maid—Tee, hee! No, I've never been engaged. That's is, not until now.

Burglar—I guess I'll have to put somethin' on dat mouth of yours.

Old Maid—Naughty man! Well, go ahead and kiss me then. Do you know that you are the first man who ever came into my life?

PALMETTO TREE BEING TURNED TO FURNITURE

Atlantic, Ga., (AP)—The sable palmetto tree, emblem of the state of South Carolina, is about to attain its second place in the history of the United States. This time it will be chronicled in the annals of furniture manufacturing.

The tree received first historical mention as a protection for the American colonists in their defense of Fort Moultrie, where the shot from the British fleet sank harmlessly in the soft, spongy logs.

His attention prompted by the unique porous quality of the tree, a large industrialist acquired a 300,000-acre tract of groves and organized the aid of twelve laboratories of furniture companies in an attempt to apply a veneer finish. After all had failed, the work department of the Georgia School of Technology which after a two year period of research, has just succeeded in applying a glass-like veneered surface and is now producing actual samples.

Its only use in the past has been for dock piling and the building of rugged picturesque log cabins.

CARDINALS EXPECT TOUGH GAME FROM PACKERS AT HOME

Undefeated Chicago Squad Whipped Bays at Home This Season, 13 to 7

Chicago—Chris O'Brien is expecting a capacity crowd at Normal park on Sunday when his Cardinals, the pride of the South side, rub elbows with the Green Bay Packers, who are rated as one of the strongest teams in the National Football league.

O'Brien figures that the Badger state champs will easily outdraw the opposition "up north" at Cubs field where the Bears and Akron are booked to perform. The Akron club is composed of old timers and only last Sunday they were taken into camp by Detroit, 25 to 0. The Bruins whipped Detroit early in the season. The "other" league game won't cut in on the Cardinals much as last Sunday with the undefeated Cleveland team playing at White Sox, the Sternaman gate was only about 2,000.

The Cardinals have been in a slump but Capt. Dunn looks for a much better exhibition this week end. Two weeks ago, the Bears administered a decisive lacing to the South Siders and last Sunday in Milwaukee, O'Brien's hirelings were mighty fortunate in getting away with a 3 to 2 victory.

Every one of the Cards know that they will have to be "on" to whip the Badger invaders as the Packers are dangerous at all times and what's more they are coming in here for revenge. A few weeks back, the Cards returned home from Packertown with a 13 to 7 victory after the toughest game of the season. Even O'Brien admits that his team played the best ball of the season against Green Bay.

The Packers will be confronted with two new faces in the Cardinal line-up. Hank Gilles, a veteran guard, has returned to the fold. His appearance adds considerable strength to the forward wall. Swenson, a pass catching end, who formerly starred with Rock Island, is being used at a wing. "Swannie" is a speed demon and, to date, he has been an important cog in the air drive.

President Joe Carr has assigned Lawton to referee the game. Lawton is one of the best officials working in the Pro league. "Horse" Edwards, South Bend, former Notre Dame star, will umpire while "Gig" Olson of Gary is the umpire. This is the first time this season that three non-Chicago men have been selected to handle a Cardinal game at home.

CARDINAL-GOPHER GAME DRAWS EYES

Spears Crew Shows New Strength Against Wabash; Is Darkhorse of Race

Chicago—(P)—Minnesota generally waved aside as a Big Ten title possibility after a crushing defeat by Michigan casts a long shadow in the week's Western Conference football. The Gophers definitely loom a factor in the championship battle with everything dependent on Saturday's showing against Wisconsin.

With Coach Spears away from the squad through illness, Minnesota turned back North Dakota but went down before Notre Dame and Michigan in succession.

"Doc" came back, and last week the Gophers threw passes hither and yon to defeat Wabash, nonconference opponent, 67 to 7, whereas Purdue, which played a scoreless tie with Wisconsin and last week conquered Chicago, worked hard for a 21 to 14 margin on Wabash.

After Wisconsin, Minnesota meets Iowa, which made a poor showing against Ohio and steps outside the Conference to play Butler as practice for a return game with Michigan. The Wolverines at that time, Nov. 20, will be winding up a campaign against Navy, Wisconsin, and powerful Ohio State which should give Minnesota a physical advantage.

Little, at Wisconsin, expects a battle royal and a major part of his time is being devoted to the defensive play which so far this fall has kept the Badger goal uncrossed.

The game is the big conference encounter of the week. Northwestern confidently expecting to score a return triumph over Indiana and Ohio taking

FATHER AND DAUGHTER

RONALD COLMAN AND LOIS MORAN PLAY THE ROLES OF FATHER AND DAUGHTER IN "STELLA DALLAS" WHICH IS BEING SHOWN WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY AT THE ELITE THEATRE

Chicago in the stride of spectacular defeats of Columbia at New York and Iowa. Both are concentrating on second teams.

At Michigan, Yost was gloomy of men and professed much worry over the Wolverine fortunes against Navy at Baltimore Saturday. Departing for the seaboard Wednesday night Yost devoted the final session on the home field to long drill Wednesday night at the forward passing game which has little more than streaked the Michigan play so far this fall.

Zuppke's troubles at Illinois were not lessened by finding that his varsity had little luck against the hidden ball attack of Penn., staged by the scrubs as practice for Saturday's other inter-sectional in conference ranks. Peters and Lanum are working over time at kicking.

Practice is a routine matter at Purdue, preparing for Indiana State normal and at Iowa, which meets Carroll college Saturday, and in the non-conference camp of Notre Dame, which Rockne's chief worry on the eve of the Georgia Tech game is finding a plunging full back for the army engagement two weeks hence.

HUGE AUDIENCE IS CHARMED BY BEAUTY OF SCHIPA'S VOICE

Famous Italian Tenor Is All That Has Been Said of Him

A superb performance was given by Tito Schipa, lyric tenor, at Lawrence Memorial chapel Tuesday evening. The audience of about 1,200 persons acclaimed him one of the greatest living tenors and recalled him time after time. With a generosity not often seen in the greater artists, Schipa tried to satisfy the demands of his audience.

When the accompanist, Jose Echaniz, who is himself a pianist of unusual merit, played the prelude of Somewhere A Voice Is Calling, the applause broke forth before Schipa had sung.

Perfect poise and charm characterized the appearance of the Italian tenor and the liquid beauty of his voice brought the realization that even the most extravagant of praises had been inadequate in describing this artist. Any usual or unusual terms must fall short of paying the deserved tribute to Schipa. His voice was above the material that may be put into language.

It has been said that Schipa's is an art that reaching out across the footlights, enchants, then captivates, for his art sings itself into people's hearts and keeps in their memories a longing for the joy of hearing him again. Thus Schipa's audience were charged and fascinated by that voice phenomenally beautiful and perfectly trained.

FIRST COMMERCIAL AD FOR UNDER DEN LINDEN

Berlin, —(P)—For the first time in its history the famous avenue, Unter den Linden, has had an advertising steamer stretched across its broad expanse. The occasion was the international police exhibition organized by the Prussian ministry of the interior.

The state permitted its cops to do what no business firm, however influential, has succeeded in accomplishing. Under den Linden, from its earliest times, has been maintained in an atmosphere devoid of such commercial or "unrefined" decorations.

Talks in Green Bay
Two lectures were given by Dr. J. R. Denyes of Lawrence college, at the German Methodist conference for young people in Green Bay Saturday and Sunday nights. The Seeing of Things Big and Under the Southern Cross were the subjects of the talks.

Portland, Ore.—(P)—Solly Seaman, New York, scored a technical knockout over Billy McCann, Cleveland, (4) Denver, Colorado—George Manley, Denver, beat Johnny Risko, Cleveland (4.)

EKERN ISSUES APPEAL FOR BLAINE'S ELECTION

Esby—(P)—An appeal to elect Governor Blaine to the United States senate was made here last night by Attorney Herman L. Ekern, speaking in behalf of the progressive Republican nominees.

Referring to Fred R. Zimmerman, Republican nominee for governor, Attorney General Ekern accused the nominee of "secretly dealing with the Stalwart Reactionaries" in his primary campaign.

The senatorship contest was squarely fought out in the primary. Governor John J. Blaine won the nomination. He won on a platform which is thoroughly progressive. He stands four square on the progressive platform adopted by the Republican primary convention. When elected he will cooperate with Senator Robert M. LaFollette, Jr. in carrying on the work of the late Senator La Follette.

CORN FIELD ATHLETES PREPARE FOR TOURNEY

Des Moines, —(P)—"Athletes of the corn fields" as they have been termed, are limbering up throughout the midwest for the annual contest that is to decide the corn picking championship.

Illinois, Minnesota, Nebraska, Missouri, Iowa and probably Indiana will have representatives in this year's meet, which is to be held in Nebraska some time in November. County contests in each state determine entrants for the final competition.

Elmer Williams of Stark Illinois, last year won the championship. The 35-year-old husker, using an old fashioned peg, turned in a net score of 35.8 bushels for one hour and 20 minutes competition. That is picking rubbings at the rate of 26.8 bushels an hour or 214.4 bushels in an eight hour day.

New Autumn Dresses of Smart Jersey

In Clever One and Two-Piece Styles

JERSEY continues as the important sport fabric of Fall. This soft material is used in both one and two-piece frocks for street and sports wear. Two-piece styles are charming for the slender figure and straight-line, tucked dresses have been designed for the mature woman. There are dresses of plain jersey, of jersey in combination with two-toned novelty weaves, and bloused styles with trimmings of gay jacquard weaves. Sizes from 14 to 44 are shown.

Careful Trimming Touches Make Each Frock A Distinctive Style

Creme de chine in matching and contrasting shades is a favorite trimming. The same effects are carried out in jersey. Handmade collars and cuffs of oyster linen are piped with colored lawn. Handmade flowers provide the smart shoulder decoration. Leather appliques are used on cuffs and pockets, as well as smart embroidery and interesting nail heads. There is such a variety of trimmings that each dress retains its individuality.

New Colors Mark These Dresses With the Newest Autumn Tones

Plain shades of willow green, chimney red, Flemish blue, Tokay tan, Chanel red, geranium red, rusted brown, jungle green, and wine tones offer a wide variety for your selection. In addition there are the sportiest of two-tone effects in many colorings.

ORIENTAL RUGS

that Will Bring the World's Richest Floors into Your House are Here in a New Exhibit

PETTIBONE'S SPECIAL EXHIBIT of fine Oriental Rugs is this week's most interesting feature in Appleton. This Exhibit not only brings a wonderful selection of rugs to Appleton for you to see, but it offers them at Specially Low Prices! These showings include the richest of Persian and Chinese rugs—in a jewel-like array of colors and designs. There are small rugs for table mats, and extra large rugs for the largest rooms. The selection is unusually large. Each rug has been personally selected by an Oriental expert. A guarantee of quality, authenticity, and value goes with every rug.

Oriental Rugs have been the world's finest floor coverings for ages. Many of these patterns have never changed. Some of the most familiar of Oriental designs were first used centuries ago. No process of manufacture has been changed, and every rug has all of the texture and wearing qualities that have become famous.

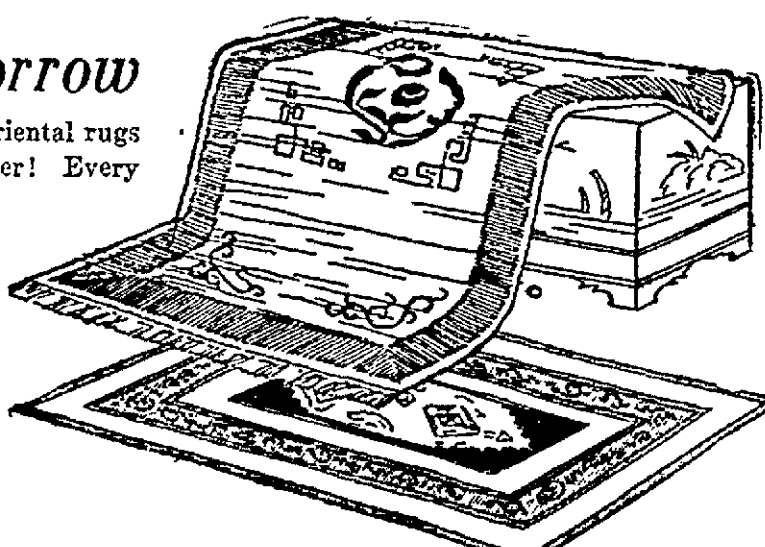

These rugs are perfectly adapted to modern homes. The colorings form the hand-somest background for modern furnishings. Oriental rugs are exceptionally durable, and their designs have never been equalled by any other floorcovering. Oriental rugs are used alone or in connection with other rugs. They give a beautiful effect when laid on top of floors covered with plain carpet. Small Oriental rugs are ideal for benches, table runners and wall hangings.

See this Collection Tomorrow

This Special Exhibit brings the finest types of Oriental rugs for your selection—at Prices That Are Positively Lower! Every rug here is an extra good investment at its price.

Oriental Rugs make beautiful Christmas gifts. They may be selected now and laid away until the holidays if desired. Every home should have at least one good Oriental rug. Select yours tomorrow.

Time To Put Down The Carpets.

It is now time to turn your attention to the floors. Before putting down your coverings see that they are in perfect condition.

Our Washington Bureau is going to help you in this matter by offering for distribution a booklet telling all about rugs, carpets, and other coverings, and how to take care of them.

Directions for finishing and staining floors are included.

If your floors or carpets need any attention this year send for this offering. Enclose four cents in stamps for return postage and handling.

Frederic J. Haskin, Director, The Appleton Post-Crescent, Information Bureau, Washington, D. C.

I enclose herewith four cents in stamps for a copy of the booklet FLOORS AND FLOOR COVERINGS.
